Boys of Sixteen Are Sent to War, but the Farmer Is Admonished Not to Let His Young Stock Go to the Butcher!

Which Prompts a Noble Englishwoman, Frances Evelyn, Countess of Warwick, to Say Some Ringing Words of Protest Which All the World Will Read. "Legal Services" Cost the Boston & Maine Railroad $800,000. What WERE These Legal Services? Which Massachusetts Town Was Named for a Brave Frenchman, Born in Dublin?

What about the war?

What is NEW about the war?

Men ask these questions. We shall try to answer them. We should PREFER to discuss other things: A powerful editorial in the Sunday AMERICAN about a wonderful young man of the name of Dorgan; the top hats the ladies will wear this Fall; the most popular book in Japan; how European crooks have flocked to the United States in great numbers and are making away with Society's jewels; the "Cattle show" at Barre; a cartoon by Mr. Powers.

But the war.

The war lacks "action."

Occasionally—not always—we read the "official statements." We observe that the armies in the Western theatre maintain their relative positions, which means that the war isn't getting anywhere." In the East, they are still running.

MOST of the fighting is being done by the people at home, in the various countries. There will be MORE of this. Taxes are soaring. The workers complain. The customary tales of graft in munitions contracts are afloat. A peace league has been formed in England.

While, then, there is little news OF the war there is considerable talk ABOUT the war.

In England, Frances Evelyn, Countess of Warwick, bravely protests against the sending of mere boys to the battlefronts.

"England," says the Countess, "preserves its live stock but leads its potential fathers to slaughter."

She quotes from a special notice to farmers, from the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries:

The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries strongly urge all Farmers to RAISE AS MUCH STOCK AS POSSIBLE during the war.

Their advice to you is:

DO NOT send breeding and immature stock to the BUTCHER simply because prices are attractive Now.

DO NOT MARKET half-finished animals; it is wasteful of the country's resources and is against your own interests.

DO NOT KILL CALVES—rear them; it is well worth it.

The Board of Agriculture and Fisheries make the above recommendations not only for the NATIONAL WELFARE but because they believe them to be for the ultimate benefit of BRITISH AGRICULTURE.

This notice the Countess of Warwick takes for the text of one of the most interesting papers given to the public since the war began. Says the lady:

It seems almost too ridiculous to be true that the government has more concern for lambs or calves than for boys on the threshold of manhood, but the facts convict them.

For myself, I would rather see a thousand of the bloodthirsty old gentlemen who preach conscription sent to the front from their club smoking-rooms, and editorial chairs, than five hundred lads from whom their country has something to expect.

Of all the iniquities that are associated with war—war as distinct from murder, I would add—there is nothing quite so horrible as the sacrifice of young life. It is common to all the nations at war.

It is false economy that raises the outcry against married men as soldiers. They alone in the community can be spared, they have fulfilled, or partly fulfilled, the function upon which civilization depends. Potentially, if not always actually, they are fathers.

Lady Warwick's protest against sending the youth of England to the shambles in Europe will occupy four columns of the Sunday AMERICAN. It becomes increasingly difficult to speak one's mind in England, she says, "even though one has no peace scheme to propound and no efficient public servant to criticise."

And the LENGTH of the war?

Mr. Hudson Maxim, military inventor and author, was asked THAT question. Mr. Maxim's answer will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN. In brief:

England's resources are stupendous, and the British spirit is a spirit of dogged determination. Therefore, I prophesy that the Allies are going to fight it out without any thought of compromise which will be to their detriment or dishonor, unless Germany shall develop such unforeseen and unguessed power as to win an overwhelming victory over the Allies, invade England and capture London. Therefore—

And why fare the Allies so badly in the Eastern theatre?

The answer comes from Mr Herman Bernstein, famous Jewish editor

DANGER OF U-BOAT CLASH OVER

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States, believes that the submarine controversy between his country and the Washington government will be settled very soon.

"I will go to Washington in a few days and hold an interview with Secretary of State Lansing," said the German Ambassador today. "I am able to assure the American people that the matter will be arranged quickly and satisfactorily for both sides. I have been in constant communication with Berlin, and I regard it as a matter of a very short time until the controversy is ended forever."

By International News Service.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Sept. 25.—Emperor William has given the German navy the greatest shakeup in its history as a result of the submarine policy which for a time threatened a break between the Berlin and Washington governments.

Following an announcement that Vice-Admiral Bachmann, chief of the naval General Staff, and Rear Admiral Behnicke, vice-chief, had been retired from active service, it became known that Vice-Admiral von Grapow and Vice-Admiral von Lans had been supplanted. Von Grapow has been serving as director of the nautical department of the Imperial Navy, while Von Lans has been in command of the First Squadron of the fleet.

More than a dozen officers who have been performing duties at the Admiralty in positions subordinate to the four admirals have been assigned to other posts.

It is understood that Germany will not abandon its submarine campaign against British shipping, but full warning will be given and passenger ships will be spared.

CHANGES SURPRISE.

It had been known that changes of importance were pending, and that officials opposed to Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg's conciliatory attitude would be resired, but neither Bachmann nor Behnicke had been mentioned in the reports of proposed changes.

Admiral von Holtzendorff, who succeeds Vice-Admiral Bachmann, is thoroughly in sympathy with the policy of the Imperial Chancellor. He is known to have criticised the submarine policy, and his selection is said to have been made after he visited Emperor William at army headquarters, where he pointed out the dangers confronting Germany if the U-boats continued their campaign along the lines at first laid out.

Bachmann and Behnicke were personal supporters of the Von Tirpitz submarine measure throughout. Their retirement from high office confirms the information previously sent by the International News Service that

VON PAPEN EXPLAINS LETTER

By International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Captain Franz von Papen, military attache of the German embassy, said today that he did not mean to apply the phrase "Idiotic Yankees" to the people of the United States. He explained that these two words, found in a letter carried by James J. F. Archbald, referred to the publishers of a New York newspaper.

"The letter which has caused so much discussion was directed to my wife," said Von Papen. "Frankly, I think that the action in making public the letter of a man to his wife is deuced bad form.

"The British authorities, when they found the letters upon the person of Mr. Archbald, pounced upon those two words (Idiotic Yankees) that have made all this trouble. They have published only an excerpt of my letter, thus changing its meaning entirely.

"My wife or anyone else reading my letter from start to finish would have gathered that the impression 'Idiotic Yankee' referred to the publishers of a New York newspaper. The newspapers have been calling us conspirators and other objectionable epithets. After certain of our private papers had been stolen this newspaper grew extremely vehement. I dealt with those publications when writing to my wife, but the British did not publish one word about those other parts of my letter."

Wilson Not to Call Senate in Session

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25.—Officials in President Wilson's confidence said today that the President has practically decided against calling an extra session of the Senate to meet in October to revise its rules. The President takes the view, it was explained, that an extra session would mean a discussion of the international relations of the United States, something which he is very anxious to avoid.

Aviator Falls 1,000 Feet, Unhurt

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 25.—Francis Hoover, a Chicago aviator, is alive today after a miraculous escape from death. In a flight at David City, Neb., yesterday, Hoover fell 1,000 feet with his machine. He alighted in a large water tank and was unhurt.

By RIGHT FIELD.

The Red Sox start a new deal in the second game of the series with the St. Louis Browns at Fenway Park today, for they are tearing mad over letting a sixth place team interfere with their steady progress toward the mathematical championship. Quite a fine ball game is in prospect, with the Sox out to make the Browns look ridiculous, and the Browns full of courage after one win more than half tempted to try for another.

The Braves today are playing their last scheduled road battle of the year, Pittsburgh being the scene of the conflict.

With Hughie Jennings, even, granting the championship to the Carrigans, they have rallied over night and will go into today's clash ready to live up to their reputations. Everybody is clamoring for them to get theses few games out of the way so they can practice "inside stuff" for the World's Series with not another care on their minds.

Foster or Leonard will be seen in the box, although neither has had quite enough rest after Wednesday's double-header. The liking for southpaws shown by the Browns in the first game may be the factor that will swing the choice to Foster.

Branch Rickey will send either Wellman or Hamilton after the game. Both are left-handed flingers and compose half the pitching corps he has brought to town.

For the getaway game on the road the Braves will send in either Tyler or Ragan, while Fred Clarke has Adams and Harmon ready.

ARMIES IN BALKANS READY

VIENNA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Sept. 25.—The great Austro-German offensive against Serbia is expected to start within a few days. Heavy artillery is being taken to the frontier, and this will be used to clear the way through the defences constructed by the Serbs under direction of British officers.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The new Balkan crisis, which bears so shrewdly upon the European war situation, became more acute today, when reports arrived here that Greece has given direct warning to Bulgaria that the Hellenic forces, now mobilizing, will join the allies if Bulgaria sides with Germany and Austria.

But a new and sinister angle—sinister from the London viewpoint—was given to the Greek activities today by Georges Clemenceau, the former French Premier, who is openly suspicious of King Constantine of Greece, brother-in-law of the Kaiser. Cables from Paris intimate a fear of a coup d'etat at Athens, by which Greece will be enrolled among the allies' foes. This fear was expressed in an open statement by Clemenceau.

Advices from Rome today reported that Roumania is moving troops toward the Bulgarian frontier.

On top of this came the report of

Accident to Pumps on the Arkansas

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—An accident to the battleship Arkansas which has placed her circulating pumps out of commission, while engaged in target practice off the Virginia capes, was reported to the Navy Department today by Admiral Frank Fletcher. He says that no one was injured, but that it has been necessary to send the battleship into Hampton Roads for repairs.

Germans Sink Ship, Probably Dutch

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The steamship Elmdyck is reported to have been sunk by a German submarine, the crew being rescued.

No ship by the name of Elmdeyk is registered by Lloyds, but there are two Dutch steamships named Eendijk.

HOSTILITY SHOWN BY BANKS

By FRANK CHARLTON,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—That agencies hostile to the proposed American war loan to the allies are endeavoring to establish an organized movement to block the credit, was evident from developments today.

In addition to the anti-loan mass meeting under the auspices of the American Truth Society, and many letters of protest, six banks and trust companies in the metropolitan district have given notice of their decision not to take part.

The six banks and trust companies which have declined to participate are the Hudson Trust Company, the German Savings Bank and the Commonwealth Savings Bank of New York, the Commonwealth Trust Company of West Hoboken, the Steink Trust Company of Hoboken and Hoboken Bank for Savings.

PLAN PROGRESSING.

In spite of this opposition, however, the Anglo-French credit commissioners are said to have progressed so far in their negotiations that they have been able to put before the finance departments of the British and French governments a tentative draft of the basis upon which the allies may secure their loan.

One report in financial circles is that the loan may not exceed $500,000,000 instead of the larger amounts previously mentioned, but that subsequently negotiations may be reopened for another credit.

SOUNDING THE PEOPLE.

The scope of the negotiations has been widened. This was admitted by Basil P. Blackett, secretary of the Anglo-French commission. This was made necessary by the additional terms demanded by American bankers.

Some of the bankers interested in the deal have intimated their intention of appealing to their depositors for their views on the loan, if the credit is successfully floated and the paper of the allied governments is placed upon the market here.

British Warships Shell Zeebrugge

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 25.—British warships bombarded the German naval base at Zeebrugge, Belgium, at dawn today. The German defences are reported to have been damaged before the German artillery compelled the squadron to draw off.

FIND BLOOD STAINED WEAPON IN BARN

Police today found a blood-stained club which they believe was the weapon used to murder Patrick Cannon, the gardener whose body was found in a dilapidated barn off Eliot street, Newton Highlands.

The club lay in the barn not far from the spot where the body was found. It is two and one-half feet long and about three inches square, with several blood stains and small particles of hair on it. It was discovered by Inspector Edward F. O'Halloran and Special Officer Richard Goode of the Newton police.

PERFORM AUTOPSY.

The police regard the finding of the club as most important, believing it removes any doubt as to the manner in which Cannon came to his death.

Medical Examiner George L. Westcott today performed an autopsy on the body. From his first superficial examination, Dr. Westcott believes that the man was beaten to death by one or more assailants.

Neither Dr. Westcott nor the Newton police were able today to advance any other motive than robbery.

Cannon was found in a small room on the second floor of the barn. The man had been dead according to the medical examiner about two days. The body was found stretched on an old mattress on the floor. The floor was littered with rubbish.

Many Imperilled by Broken Water Main

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Five hundred families were imperilled, more than seven city blocks are flooded and scores of houses undermined by the bursting of a huge water main in front of No. 1247 Decatur street, Brooklyn, early today. Cellars and the lower floors of the houses in an area more than half a mile square were flooded before the water could be turned off. The cause of the break is not known.

anti-Teutonic outbreaks at Bucharest, due to reports that Roumania might join the Teutonic allies.

The Paris suspicions of Greek intentions have added to the anxiety over the Balkans. Even the mobilization of the Greek army fails wholly to reassure French officialdom.

M. Clemenceau, who is at liberty to speak more freely than the French officials themselves, says:

"What is King Constantine going to do with his troops? I fear Venizelos would find it very embarrassing to answer this question. Information has reached me from Athens that the eminent statesman (Venizelos) is little disposed to act. This perhaps is the result of the check the King formally inflicted upon him. There is no reason to believe the King's policy has changed."

Roumania is another enigma. The ex-premier asserted. The attitude of the Bucharest government cannot be predicted.

MACEDONIAN DISPUTE.

A dispatch from Athens to the Petit Parisien states that a Bulgarian invasion of Macedonia by forces comprising four infantry divisions, several regiments of cavalry and bands of Macedonia volunteers is imminent.

Meanwhile the allies are spending every nerve to keep Bulgaria from joining Germany. Favorable to this end—barring the pessimistic hints from Paris—is the report that King Constantine of Greece has sent a personal letter to King Ferdinand at Sofia, warning him that Bulgaria's participation in the war on the side of the Teutonic alliance will force Greece into the entente camp.

This letter, says a dispatch from Bucharest, was sent from Athens after the Italian minister to Greece had conferred with Constantine and Premier Venizelos. Telegrams have been exchanged between Premiers of the two countries. Rumors say these relate to the state of Macedonia.

ANTI-TEUTONIC RIOTS.

Reports that the Roumanian government might ally itself with the Teutonic powers caused violent anti-German and anti-Austrian riots in Bucharest last night. The mobs were dispersed after many had been injured. Popular sentiment there favors the allies.

The account of the anti-Teutonic outbreaks at Bucharest reached here today. There has never been any doubt as to the attitude of the Roumanian people, but the failure of the Bucharest government to follow it into the war has caused suspicion that Roumania was leaning toward the Germans. The recent victories of the Russians in Volhynia and Galicia may have their effect on Bucharest officialdom, however.

With strong and well-equipped Russian forces on the northern frontier of Roumania, that country would not join the Teutons unless guaranteed certain that they were going to receive the support of the German army.

BALKANS UNDER ARMS.

All the Balkan nations are now under arms.

Bulgaria is completing mobilization of her forces of approximately 750,000 men. Roumania has under arms many of her 600,000 troops. It has been assumed that Roumania would join Greece on the side of the allies, this being based on the idea that Athens favore the entente. Greece could put 400,000 men in the field, and her navy could menace Bulgarian ports.

In fortifying Varna and other Black Sea ports, Bulgaria is said to fear not only a Greek naval raid, but also invasion by the Russians through Varna, which is but thirty hours' sail from Odessa.

The Greek mobilization is announced as "a measure of elementary precaution" to offset similar action by Bulgaria. The classes of 1892 to 1911 have been called to the colors.

A decree has been promulgated convoking the Chamber Wednesday to pass a law putting at the disposal of the government here all the railways. The transport of merchandise is forbidden. The National Bank is depositing 144,000,000 drachmas ($7,800,000) for the mobilization. All Greek steamers have been requisitioned. A moratorium will be established at once.

The announcement is welcomed with enthusiasm everywhere.

ROUMANIA SILENT.

The Roumanian cabinet has been called into council by the King, and it is believed that complete mobilization of all Roumania's forces is being discussed.

News of the Bulgarian mobilization produced a profound impression in Athens. At the Cabinet council the decision was arrived at that as a matter of safety for the country Greece should reply by a corresponding mobilization. This decision was communicated to the King by Premier Venizelos.

The semi-official newspaper Patrie of Athens says the military measures undertaken by Greece show a decision has been reached to meet Bulgaria's move energetically and without delay. It adds that the intention of Greece is to defend her own rights and to fulfil her duty to support Serbia.

It is reported from Salonica that the Bulgarian crown prince is in command of an army numbering 225,500 men and 1,080 guns. The chief of the general staff will be General Jekoff, present war minister, who is to be replaced by General Goudintzeff.

The operations against the Serbs will be carried out by General Boyadieff, present chief of the general staff. Five cavalry regiments with peace strength have been sent to the Serbian frontier.

Frontier regiments have been reinforced by drafts from regiments in the interior. Military college pupils have been drafted to the regular corps. A transport battalion has left Sofia for Dubnitza, and a group of mounted artillery for an unknown destination.

GIRL TO MARRY MAN SHE SUED IN MOCK TRIAL

Miss Freda Olson of Lynn, bride-to-be of W. S. Newhall, defendant in love suit in Lynn mock trial.

W. Stanley Newhall, champion amateur basketball player of Lynn, is to marry Miss Freda Olson of No. 10 Amity street, Lynn, whom he was "sentenced" to wed at a mock breach of promise trial which was the feature of the Lynn Y. M. C. A. minstrel show last April. The engagement of the young couple was announced today.

When "Judge" J. Alfred Bowie, the presiding justice at the mock trial, ordered the ball player to marry Miss Olson, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Olson, few realized that the "defendant" took the case any more seriously than the hundreds who laughed at the "testimony."

"Yes, it is true that our engagement is the result of the mock trial," said Miss Olson today. "I had known Mr. Newhall for four years previous to the trial and was an 'end' in the minstrel show of which he was interlocutor. It was not until after the 'judge's' decree, however, that Stanley became serious in his attentions."

RUSSIANS TAKE TWO TOWNS, IS CLAIM

LONDON, Sept. 25.—On the eastern front the Russian centre is firmly resisting the Germans and has taken Vilieka, an important railway point, by a desperate bayonet fight.

The Russians claim unofficially the capture of Lutsk and 4,000 Austrians.

In the north, Field Marshal von Hindenburg continues to make progress with his offensive against Dvinsk, although at a much slower rate than formerly, as the Russians are offering their resistance. East of Vilna the Germans admit a temporary check, during which they lost guns to the Russians.

General Ivanoff has been so successful that the German Field Marshal von Mackensen, who is fighting north of the Pripet marshes eastward of Brest-Litovsk, has, according to the German official report, been compelled to withdraw his line somewhat, as it was in danger of being encircled, while the Austrians have been driven back across the Styr and, according to one account, have evacuated the fortress of Lutsk, in the Volynian triangle of fortresses, which they captured during the great drive.

Vienna reports the Russians charged eleven flies deep at Lutsk, after employing strong artillery, but claims all these efforts failed.

French Blow Up a Turkish Mine

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—The following official report on operations at the Dardanelles was issued at the War Office this afternoon.

"At the Dardanelles the last week was very quiet in the two zones of the Gallipoli peninsula. On our front the Turks attempted an attack with a mine, but we destroyed their gallery with a Geddes check, killing, according to a prisoner, two officers and thirteen men."

Rockingham Hotel Burned.

LAWRENCE, Sept. 25.—The Rockingham, for years one of the best known of the old-time hotels in the country, situated on the shores of Island Pond, Derry, N. H., and a few years ago purchased by Thomas Kernon, a well known Lawrence hotel man, was destroyed by fire last night, the loss being nearly $5,000.

HUNT SLAYER OF NEWTON GARDENER

stones and sticks, which had been thrown through the windows by boys who have used the windows for targets ever since the barn was abandoned, a long time ago.

The last person to see Cannon alive was Dr. C. Arthur Thompson of No. 1099 Walnut street, Newton, who gave Cannon $8 Monday for gardening work. The empty envelope in which this money had been put was found in the room where Cannon's body was discovered.

SAW NOBODY NEAR BARN.

Cannon had a brother, John E. Cannon, with whom he lived at No. 208 Dedham street, Newton Highlands. Ordinarily Cannon lived on the estates wherever he happened to be working as a gardener. He had worked on many Newton estates, caring for lawns, trimming trees and doing other gardening work. When not living on the place where he happened to be working he stayed at his brother's house.

He also had a nephew, Joseph Cannon, who lived at No. 4 Cannon street, Newton. Both these relatives say that the gardener was a very quiet man, with few friends, and the last man in the world to pick a quarrel or to become at all friendly with strangers. They say that in spite of his irregular work he made money enough to keep him comfortable.

The nearest house to the barn is that at No. 44 Elliot street, fifty yards away. Mrs. Laura Proctor, wife of Francis Proctor, who lives there, declares that the barn is near enough for her to hear moderately loud voices. She had noticed recently that persons frequented the barn, because she had heard them talking. She thought that the voices were probably those of boys hiding there to play cards.

Mrs. Proctor is positive that if there had been any struggle in the barn, or and shouting or screaming, she would have heard it. For the last week, she said, she had heard not the slightest sound. Nor had she seen anyone entering or leaving the barn.

GERMAN NAVAL HEADS ARE DEPOSED

important modifications would be made in the submarine policy and that Ambassador von Bernstorff would have the support of the German government as regards the pledges he has made to the United States.

OPPOSED U-BOAT POLICY.

Admiral von Holtzendorff is said to have decried the sinking of Atlantic liners as of no value from a war standpoint. He was supported by Admiral von Koch, head of the Marine Department, who is slated to take the post left vacant by the removal of Rear Admiral Behncke.

Working harmoniously on the submarine policy, these two officers are expected to prevent further torpedoing of passenger ships. They have reopened the investigation of the destruction of the liner Arabic, and if they find that a submarine commander erred, a complete disavowal of his act will be sent to the United States.

Admiral von Holtzendorff was formerly commander of the German High Seas fleet, but was succeeded by Admiral von Ingenohl shortly before the war opened. He has always been an advocate of dreadnought construction, and it was largely due to his efforts that Germany adopted the policy of naval expansion to meet the conditions brought about by England's policy of building great warships.

WASHINGTON SEES NO NEW DANGER OF GERMAN DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Officials today were almost convinced that danger of further complications with Germany has passed. The reports received here telling of the submarine activities off the Irish coast, official and unofficial, agree that the German commanders are trying to exercise the right of visitation and search.

They are also admittedly hampered by the attempt of commanders to escape, and in this connection it was again emphasized today at the State Department that vessels which do not heed the signal to stop when given immediately lose their rights under international law and are subject to immediate attack.

Although an American citizen, G. W. King, wireless operator, may have been lost when the Chancellor was sunk yesterday, there is no ground for protest. The steamer tried to escape, and yet in the face of that fact, when her captain hauled to, the German commander gave the crew ten minutes to take to the boats. It is believed that had another ordered attempt to sink the horse and munitions transports now running from Canadian and American ports to England has been begun.

The fact that the Anglo-Columbian was chased seventy-eight miles indicates that the submarines are now operating well out in the Atlantic in the direct path of the transport steamers.

Ball-Player Dead From Over-Exertion

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 25.—Charles Schombert, one of the best-known players of the Cumberland and Georges Creek League, is dead as a result of a hemorrhage of the brain, supposed to have been brought on by over-exertion on the ball field. He was an catcher and outfielder with the Frostburg club, last year's champions.

Amateur Boxers to Meet at Exposition

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—A national amateur boxing tournament is being arranged for Oct. 29 and 30, under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union and in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Word has been received from Fred Rubien, of New York, secretary of the A. A. U., giving consent to the tournament, which, if held, will be the second since the opening of the exposition.

THE TIME HAS COME TO TALK AND READ OF MANY LIVELY THINGS

The Russian people are paying the price of the government's regime of debauchery.

Nor is it Russia alone that is paying this price.

Almost the whole of Europe is paying for Russian intrigues and duplicity. Millions of human beings are being slaughtered as a result of Russian machinations to en-Slav and enslave Europe.

Much of the story of Russia's conspiracy against the Jewish people during this war, and of the horrible atrocities perpetrated upon the Jews of Russia, has been told in America. It was hard to believe the details at first, but the facts are even graver, more terrible, more shocking than related in the reports of the investigators.

It is nothing less than a Hellis affair on a large scale. Through the Beilis affair, Russia sought to discredit the Jewish people by accusing one Jew of having committed a ritual murder. . . . Now the Russian government is seeking to discredit the Jewish people of Russia by a wholesale charge of treachery.

The reason we hear so little about Russia's wartime treatment of her Jewish people, Mr. Bernstein says, is that Russia controls a large number of newspapers in France and a few in England. French and English editors and journalists, he says, are on the Russian payroll. The Russian censorship has become "altogether unceremonious in the suppression of facts."

Readers of the Sunday AMERICAN are thus given some informing and entertaining "sidelights" on the Great War. In the news columns, moreover, the Sunday AMERICAN will present the NEWS of the war. And, in the opinion of veteran observers, NEWS of the war is about due. "Time is going who was BREAKING," they say. It may "break" late tonight, or early in the morning. If so, look for it in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The editorial about Mr. Dorgan.

"Mr. Dorgan" is an old friend of yours. He draws excellent pictures. "Tad," he signs himself, T. A. D., Thomas A. Dorgan.

The subject of the full-page Sunday Editorial is "Your Young Men Shall See Visions"; the text, "Your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams."

We want all the boys, all the young men, all the mothers, all the fathers in New England, to READ THIS EDITORIAL. At the risk of a severe scolding for being "long winded," we shall quote here a paragraph or two.

You see the picture on this page, and you know well the signature on it.

This picture is made by a young man who certainly had as little chance as any other young man in the country.

His father was dead, and when he was only a young boy he was the worker for a family of six children younger than himself.

He worked at a trade in the beginning, and needed both his hands for his trade. He had a talent for drawing, and amused his fellow workers by making clever caricatures of them at their work.

One day one-half of his right hand was cut off by the machinery which he worked, and that kind of work was impossible for him.

How do you think your case compares with that of this particular man? He had lost the right hand upon which his living depended. He had had no especial education, only a few years in the elementary public schools.

He had a mother and half a dozen young brothers and sisters who depended upon him.

The editorial tells how "Tad" taught himself to draw with his left hand. What this young man did thousands of other young men can do.

But young man, you can't do it idling away your time at your work, dreaming of foolish pleasures to come, and seeing visions of that kind.

Lady Duff-Gordon, the famous "Lucile" of New York and London, writes of "Toppers for Women," the new high hats for tailor-made maids. Illustrated.

More than a million copies have been sold of Japan's most popular book, which has gone into a sixth edition. What is it about? The war between Japan and America?

Another feature story in the Sunday AMERICAN tells how the War in Europe has driven an army of the world's most skilful criminals to America. We are beginning to read in the daily newspapers of their rich hauls and other exploits.

Woodrow Wilson is President of the United States because he visited the cattle show at Barre, Massachusetts, just before plunging into his campaign. John F. Fitzgerald became Mayor of Boston because he was "brought up on" Barre milk! These facts have been brought in by the careful reporter who, on Thursday, attended the Barre Fair. HE says the girls of Petersham, North Brookfield and Barre are the loveliest in Massachusetts. Also he brings back a striking photograph of Mr. William Hooper, president of the exclusive—very exclusive—Somerset Club of Boston, who was among the distinguished visitors to Barre. And DID you know that Barre was named after a great Frenchman, born in Ireland, who became a soldier of the British empire and an M. P.?

Speaking of Barre milk, you MAY have observed that the Boston & Maine threatens to jump the freight rate on milk, thus increasing the cost to the consumer. Coincidentally, it is revealed that the Boston & Maine has in a few years paid to attorneys—some of them quite unknown—about $500,000. SOME of this went to attorneys whose duties consisted of keeping the Grand Trunk Railway out of New Hampshire. The Sunday AMERICAN will tell the story of these Boston & Maine expenditures and print ALL the names.

Mr. Julian Hawthorne writes in the Sunday AMERICAN of the Boston team in the American League, tells why they are the champions of that organization, and gives his reasons for believing the Sox to be the champion ball tossers of all the world.

And, of course, the Sunday AMERICAN will contain a smile or two. Several of them, in fact.

Somebody suggests certain "Things Worth Knowing."

How to Enjoy Life—Get a lot of money.

To Get a Seat in a Street Car—Buy it and put it out in your back yard.

What to Do in Mexico—Get out.

A School of Designers—A female college.

Immediately after which there will be a grand concert—[illegible] may remain in the seats you now occupy and no gentlemanly ushers will pass among you—by Mr. Tomasso Edoardino Powersini, entitled "What's Going On in the Various Zones." We look for Boston, and we find that Mr. Powers has placed a stenographer in a cage, just like Mrs. Smith said at the State House.

In other words, the Sunday AMERICAN of tomorrow will be a pippin.

CARRANZA MAY LOSE FAVOR WITH U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—War Department officials, incensed by the ambush of American troops on United States soil by Carranza soldiers in uniform, today declared that conditions on the border around Brownsville have become intolerable. The State Department has been requested to demand an immediate explanation from General Carranza. Major Anderson's report specifically said many of the Mexicans in yesterday's fight were in uniform and General Funston's is expected to confirm this.

Army officers, already indignant at the repeated attacks on American forces around Brownsville by Carranza troops, culminating earlier in the week with a challenge of Major-General Funston's veracity by the Carranzista agency here, made no attempt to conceal their chagrin at the latest outrages. If these officers have their way General Carranza and his following will receive short shrift from the United States unless a prompt disavowal of the latest attack is forthcoming.

FRENCH PLANES BOMBARD METZ

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Today's official communique from the War Office reports that the great bombardment on the Franco-German front continued through the night. Aeroplanes bombarded Metz. The text of the communique follows:

"In Artois, our artillery continued its effectual activity against the enemy's lines. To the south of the Somme, the Germans bombarded our trenches from our sapping posts to the environs of Andechy Dancourt and Tellobot. Our batteries replied with energy and took the initiative in many points. The cannonade on both sides was very violent all the time to the north of the Aisne and on the Aisne-Marne canal.

JOHN D. TRICKED BY WOMAN ON LOAN TALK

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—John D. Rockefeller was tricked by a woman into revealing his unalterable opposition to the proposed billion-dollar loan to the allies.

The greatest single master of wealth in the world made this revelation yesterday to a representative of the New York American, who met him at Tarrytown upon his return from his Summer residence in Cleveland.

The "oil king" would not deny he had stated his opposition to the loan.

"A woman betrayed me," he asserted, his deep blue eyes snapping. "She got into Forest Hills as a guest."

Then he added with compressed lips:

"It will not happen again."

"Will you take part in the loan under any consideration?" the capitalist was asked.

REFUSES COMMENT ON LOAN.

Mr. Rockefeller shrugged his shoulders, spread his hands and shook his head in a gesture that might have been intended for a refusal to talk or a negative reply.

Mr. Rockefeller got into his automobile and with a wave of his hand was whirled up the hill to Pocantico Hills.

He refused later to add to his statement or to give any inkling of the manner in which the woman became a guest at his Cleveland estate. He was mute, too, upon the suggestion that forces opposed to the loan may have engineered the interviewer's entrance into his home.

The oil king arrived at Tarrytown in a special car attached to the Beaver Limited a few minutes after 7 o'clock yesterday morning. He was accompanied by his sister-in-law, Miss Spellman; his eight-year-old granddaughter, Mary Adelene Prentice, and a retinue of servants.

IN EXCELLENT HUMOR.

Inhaling deeply the keen morning air, Mr. Rockefeller left the private car, refusing the proffered aid of his valet. He assisted his sister-in-law and his little granddaughter from the train.

He seemed bright and alert, physically and mentally, and in excellent humor. His face was tanned parchment. His eyes were clear. He wore the familiar stiff felt hat and carried a wrought cane with horizontal handle. A suit of light gray tweed, a dark overcoat and shoes of dark mustard completed his attire. A black necktie, in which gleamed a large pearl pin, was his only token of mourning.

In great good humor Mr. Rockefeller shook hands with newspaper men and smilingly acquiesced when the AMERICAN photographer asked him to pose.

"You had better take a picture of my little girl. She is better looking than I am," he chuckled, and taking the child gently by the arm he stood beside her at the steps of the private car.

OIL KING TURNS OVER ALL HIS AFFAIRS TO HIS SON

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., on his tour of the Colorado mines, has fraternized with the families of his employes. This photograph, copyright by the International News Service, shows him with a group of children of the miners.

By WILLIAM HOSTER.

PUEBLO, Col., Sept. 25.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has formally taken over the management of all his father's interests, and for all practical purposes is now in control of the Rockefeller properties and will be their guiding force in the future.

It is in this capacity that young Mr. Rockefeller is making his present tour of inspection of the plants of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company. This concern, as well as all the others under Rockefeller control, will from this time on increasingly feel his influence.

The senior Mr. Rockefeller, proud of his son's achievements and anxious to be relieved of all cares, has turned over to his son full control of his affairs.

This does not mean, of course, that Rockefeller, Jr., will not continue to profit by his father's counsel and advice, but the latter has abounding faith in his son and is a believer in young blood and fresh ideas, and the son is to act in the future as though the father's interests were absolutely his own.

"Fair dealing and full publicity" may be described as the new Rockefeller motto. For a year there has been in progress at No. 26 Broadway a slow progress toward this new policy, and it now blossoms forth in the truly revolutionary incidents of the present trip.

Mr. Rockefeller posed for a photograph with the group of correspondents who are accompanying him.

"I don't mind a bit," he said. "But are you sure they care to risk their reputations by posing with me?"

POSES WITH DONKEY.

"We understand," said one of the correspondents, "that in our absence at lunch you posed for a photograph on a donkey, which little Fred Welfel took. We will consent to pose with you if you will consent to our having that donkey picture for publication."

"I accept the conditions," said Rockefeller, "and if you want to you can label it 'two of a kind.'"

Then he extended a broad invitation to the correspondents to go with him to the steel plant. This illustrates a feature of the new policy of the Rockefellers. Till today there had never been a newspaper reporter as such admitted to the plant of the steel company.

In his shirt sleeves, facing without flinching the great blast furnaces, and dodging about among flying ingots, moving cranes and great retorts of molten steel, the young millionaire got an idea of how these employes under his control battle for a living.

At times he was in the centre of showers of sparks, perspiration poured from his face, hot steel flooring scored his feet, flying dust begrimed him.

Asking a thousand questions, and pausing at every step to shake the blackened hands of sweating workers, he gave two hours to the plant. When he was through he might easily have been mistaken for a foreman who had put in a hard afternoon's work.

Following this inspection he viewed the big C. F. and I. Hospital, under the escort of Dr. R. W. Corwin, its director, who also has a national reputation for his work in eugenics.

Today he went into the field to inspect some mines. On Sunday he will rest, and on Monday plunge once more into the work on hand, leaving later for Wyoming.

LEADS THE DANCE.

The dance at the Cameron mine is the talk of the mining country. It was Rockefeller himself who suggested the dance, and it was he who led the first young woman out on the floor.

For a time the wives and daughters of the miners held back, timid about approaching the son of the richest man in the world, but again it was Rockefeller who made the advances. One by one he picked out partners, until finally he had the dance in full swing.

At 10 o'clock John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was the centre of a group of laughing young women. Noticed that the newspapermen did not dance, he jibed them for holding back. One confessed to being sleepy.

"So am I," he retorted. "I meant to go to bed early tonight. But who would go to bed on such a night as this? One can sleep at any time."

The orchestra struck up "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary."

"It's a long way to No. 26 Broadway," suggested one of the correspondents.

"Two thousand miles," said Mr. Rockefeller, slipping his arm about a buxom Scotch girl and leading her out upon the floor. "Just fellers a regular guy," said a big miner as the heir of the Standard Oil stepped into the crowd.

WILLIAMS OUT OF MIDDLESEX COUNTY RACE

Chester B. Williams of Wayland, who received the Republican nomination at Tuesday's primaries for re-election as Middlesex County Commissioner, has withdrawn from the county race.

Mr. Williams made a statement to the AMERICAN in which he mentioned the bitterness of the primary campaign and attacks made on him in political advertisements and letters in the county newspapers.

He sent a letter in reply to these newspapers. The prominent Republican county newspaper wrote back to him:

"It seems to us that this is a matter intended to help you attain a salaried position and we can see no reason why you should not pay for it the same as any tradesman should pay for advertising his wares."

WILLIAMS "DISGUSTED."

Mr. Williams is "disgusted" at this.

Mr. Williams was elected four years ago to fill an unexpired term. He was elected for the usual three-year term and came forward as a candidate for renomination this Summer. He was opposed for the Republican re-nomination by John L. Dyer, Cambridge lawyer, and Harry A. Penniman, Cambridge business man.

Dyer had the support of the Republican machine in Cambridge and made a particularly vigorous fight. But Williams led both his opponents in every city and town in the county except Cambridge when the returns came in.

Mr. Williams had a plurality of 2,500 over his two opponents. His supporters were elated.

But today Mr. Williams came to the county commissioners' office in the Middlesex courthouse at East Cambridge, wrote his resignation from the race and started out to drive to the office of Secretary of State A. P. Langtry in his automobile to file the resignation.

"NO WARES TO SELL."

To a reporter who intercepted him and learned of his errand the commissioner said:

"I am perfectly satisfied with the returns, of course.

"But this was a particularly bitter campaign. I was subjected to much hard criticism by advertising and by letter in the county papers. I prepared an answer to these various charges and sent it to the county papers. From a prominent Republican daily I received a letter in which were a few lines.

Mr. Williams showed the lines quoted above, referring to paying for "his wares." The commissioner resumed:

"Such treatment disgusted me and I made up my mind to withdraw. I have no wares to sell and neither do I care to 'die in office,' as has been the Middlesex County commissioners."

Japan's Ambitious Plans To Conquer Us Revealed

"Let America beware! For our cry, 'On to California! On to Hawaii! On to the Philippines!' is becoming only secondary to our imperial anthem."

"Ever since we vanquished the Russian hordes the whole world has held us in the highest esteem and reverence. But to the American people we are a giant Nemesis that they know will some day fall upon and annihilate them, smiting them, as their Bible says, 'on the hip and on the thigh with a great slaughter.'"

"It must be remembered that the Americans are a crude race that consists of every kind of riff-raff blood. We in Japan have a glorious history that antedates by thousands of years even the knowledge that the wild and Indian-infested America ever existed!"

"To arms! We must seize our standards, unfurl them to the winds and advance without the least fear, as America has no army worthy the name, and with the Panama Canal destroyed, its few battleships will be of no use until too late."

These paragraphs are not the wild dreams of a fiction writer. They are extracts from the most popular book in Japan today—a book issued by Japan's powerful and official National Defense Association to inflame the people against the United States and to explain to them the ambitious plans already made for invading and conquering this country.

This remarkable book—remarkable both for the bitter hatred it breathes and for the supreme confidence it shows in Japanese superiority—reveals all Japan's war plans as clearly as General Bernhardi's famous volume did Germany's.

If the allies had given heed to Bernhardi's significant observations, their condition might be quite different from what it is today. In the same way the future of the United States may hinge on the information contained in the work of this Japanese "Bernhardi."

Realizing its grave import, the SUNDAY AMERICAN has had this book carefully translated and will present the most important parts of it to the American public for the first time in two double page articles.

The first of these articles will be printed in the Magazine Section of tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN. Read it and see why the Japanese are determined to declare war upon us, how they expect to win and what they think of our men and women, our morals and our "contemptible army and navy."

RED CROSS WORK FOR ARMENIANS STARTED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Concerted action to save the lives of the remaining 750,000 men, women and children in Armenia was begun today. While waiting for a plan of procedure to be suggested by Ambassador Morgenthau, the American Red Cross was perfecting plans to raise needed funds for its relief work, and within the next few days it hopes to have experienced agents on the way to Constantinople. Meanwhile the work of organizing the American relief association of the United States is well under way. Charles R. Crane and James L. Barton, who are at the head of the movement, are in New York interesting philanthropic circles there.

The report that American Consuls are warning missionaries to leave the country drew the comment from Acting Secretary of State Polk that they must be doing so on their own responsibility.

The attitude of the Turkish government is the great obstacle in the way of relief from this side. It has taken the ground that "military necessity" has compelled it to segregate the Armenians in the small villages in the deserts of Asiatic Turkey, where they are dying like flies. If the Turkish government should forbid the sending of money or relief work as now is feared, it will be imperative that Germany be asked to help.

Mrs. Bundy Wants to Play with Champion

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Thomas C. Bundy, who as Miss May Sutton was the country's greatest woman tennis player a few season's ago, declared today that she was willing to play Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the Norwegian girl, who has been playing such sensational tennis in this country during the present season.

Mrs. Bundy says that Miss Bjurstedt cannot defeat her, and she would be willing to accept a challenge from the Norwegian girl. With this assurance from Mrs. Bundy, it is likely that a match between the two players will soon be arranged.

Leonard Fined $50; Appeals Drug Case

James J. Leonard, whom the police say is Leo F. McCullough, former chairman of the old Common Council of the City of Boston, who was arrested some time ago in connection with a drug raid in the South End, was arraigned before Judge Hayden in the Roxbury District Court, who fined him $50. He appealed and was held in $300 for the Superior Court. A woman who figured in the case was also fined $50, and she, too, was held in the same amount.

HAMPTON BEACH MAKES PLANS TO REBUILD

HAMPTON BEACH, N. H., Sept. 25.—More drastic building regulations were proposed today to prevent a recurrence of the fire which destroyed the heart of the beach at a loss of $250,000. The total insurance was estimated at $125,000.

The town authorities admit that the fire would not have got such a start if it were not for the inflammable materials used in the construction of a number of buildings on the beach front.

Many of the cottages were not insured and practically all of the hotels did not carry more than half insurance. L. C. Ring of Hampton is the principal loser and he estimates his loss at about $40,000 with only $15,000 insurance. The Ashworth Hotel had $14,000 insurance against a loss of $35,000, and this was about the proportion on all buildings that carried insurance.

Today there was a most encouraging air about the beach and all of the property owners say that they will rebuild as soon as the debris is sufficiently cool to be cleared away.

Admit Dumba Letter Could 'Not Be Sent'

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The State Department today cleared up the mystery of the statement made by Dr. Dumba, the Austrian ambassador, that by was not permitted by the naval censors to send a dispatch to his home government. Secretary Daniels has denied that any message was held up.

Officials say, however, that the communication contained the substance of the intercepted letter and that they did not consider that the ambassador that such matter could not be sent. The State Department has taken no action with reference to obtaining a safe passage for Dr. Dumba, as he requested. It still awaits word from the Austrian government that it has decided to recall him.

2 Men Fall With Staging.

Edward Mack, 41, of No. 239 Everett street, East Boston, and Archie French, of No. 55 Liverpool street, East Boston, while working on a staging on the steam yacht Malay, were pitched to the ground, a distance of 26 feet, when the staging collapsed. They were taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital. Their injuries aren ot serious.

CROWNINSHIELD SURRENDERED BY BONDSMEN

Albert H. and Arthur J. Crowninshield, who were arrested early in the week on a charge of attempted larceny, as the result of fake fare swindles, were surrendered by their bondsmen today at the Charles Street Jail.

They are charged with attempted larceny from Herbert Smith of Winchester, and were held in $700 each.

It became known today, "by the rumor that the Crowninshields were to leave town, that there was an old indictment warrant against Albert H. Crowninshield, charging conspiracy to steal $2,000 from George A. Burbank of No. 10 Claflin road, Brookline.

Assistant District Attorney Daniel V. McIsaac went into court hereafter with the old indictment and gave it to Inspector Smith, who had charge of the previous case.

Both men were sent to Charles street jail to await a new bondsman.

Assistant District Attorney McIsaac said: "It came to my ears that the Crowninshields might leave town, so I thought that they had better be put under arrest on the indictment warrant. It was not generally known that there was an indictment, as it had been kept secret. The officers then took the warrant and waited for them to show up. When they appeared they were promptly sent to the guardrest. I shall ask for much heavier bail than they obtained before."

SAYS LONDON IS NOT IN TERROR OF ZEPPELINS

H. Gordon Selfridge, the American owner of the great Selfridge department store in London, has come to America for a couple of weeks' visit to friends. Mr. Selfridge left London two weeks ago on board the American liner Philadelphia. He will return next Saturday.

Mr. Selfridge was found this morning in the office of Mr. H. E. Kirstein, in the Filene store building. He gave some interesting descriptions of the new famous Zeppelin raid which was made on London just before he left.

He said it was a mistake to suppose that there was anything like hysteria or panic in London because of the war. Everything is normal, considering the prevailing situation.

FEELING IS NORMAL.

"The British public," said Mr. Selfridge, "is not in a hysterical condition. On the contrary, it is very self-contained. What I mean by that is that there is no very great enthusiasm, and never any great repression. It is a normal feeling, as I say. The only feeling that does exist is one of profound sorrow because of the loss of the young men in this frightful and unnecessary war."

Speaking of the Zeppelin raid of two weeks ago, Mr. Selfridge said:

"The raid, so called, occurred at 11 o'clock at night. My wife, my mother and I were sitting in our drawing room in Arlington street, right in the middle of London, enjoying a game of cards, when we heard a sound that seemed to me to be thunder. In a second or two we heard somebody say 'Zeppelin.'

ZEPPELIN A MILE IN AIR.

"One of my daughters ran out with me into the street, and looking up, we saw the Zeppelin a mile high, scooting away as fast as it could for the north. The noise which we thought was thunder, was the firing of the aerial guns, which tried to get the Zeppelin, but succeeded in doing nothing better than driving it off.

"In common with every other sensible person in London, I cannot for the life of me understand why the Germans attach any military value to the work of those Zeppelins. They accomplish nothing. They kill a few women and some children, all of them unarmed people. What does that amount to from the standpoint of military glory?

LONDON NOT HYSTERICAL.

"If their aim is to create a panic in London, they will find it as easy accomplishment as the creation of a panic in the granite hills of New Hampshire. It isn't in the nature of the people to go into panic.

"There was much criticism that night to London of the men in charge of the aerial guns, that they did not bring down the Zeppelins. But the fault was not with the guns, but with the amateurs in command of them. This is now all changed. Sir Percy Scott has taken command of the aerial artillery. And next time the Zeppelins come they will get a reception."

Veterans of '61 Days Gather at Capital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—With the opening of the national headquarters in the Raleigh hotel today the preliminaries to what may prove the last annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic got well under way. Every train that arrived today disgorged its cargo of uniformed veterans, coming to talk over the stirring days of '61.

Practically every State in the Union already is represented here, although the official exercises will not commence until Monday.

The parade is to be reviewed by President Wilson on the fiftieth anniversary of the "Grand Review." Colonel E. D. Stowitz of Buffalo, quartermaster-general, and George A. Hosley of Boston, chief of staff of the commander-in-chief, who opened their headquarters today, said that the parade next Wednesday would see 20,000 veterans in line.

Biggest Alcohol Order Is Placed

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Announcement was made today that the United States Industrial Alcohol Company had secured the largest order for alcohol ever placed in the United States. Neither the amount of it nor the names of those who placed the order was revealed.

Part of the contract has been sublet to the Distillers Security Company and there will be enough work to reopen all the plants of that concern. Some of the smaller concerns also will be called upon to assist the United States Industrial Company in filling its huge order.

Governor Walsh to Review N. Y. Militia

Governor Walsh, as a guest of Governor Whitman, will today review the New York National Guard, said to be mobilized in New York city. Governor Walsh is in New York for a brief visit.

REJECTS $60,000 FOR FELICE LYNE IN FILM PICTURE

If Felice Lyne can get her hands on her manager, Allan Cahill, she will relieve him of a lot of his hair. Miss Lyne has been offered $60,000 to go into the movies and Mr. Cahill won't let her accept.

Miss Lyne is a true artist and loves grand opera better than life, but $60,000 is some money and she wants it.

Miss Lyne, it will be remembered, is the little American girl who was the sensation of Oscar Hammerstein's London season two years ago and who has since been touring the world in opera. She made one appearance with the Boston Opera Company two seasons ago as Gilda in "Rigoletto" and operagoers remember yet the sensation she created. She was immediately re-engaged for twenty performances at $750 a performance last season, but the war broke out and the Boston Opera Company blew up.

This season Miss Lyne placed her affairs in the hands of Allan Cahill, the young manager who was formerly associated with Henry Russell. She signed a contract which gave him full control over her actions.

Felice Lyne, opera singer, whose manager has refused to sign a $60,000 motion picture contract for her.

Miss Lyne appeared at a concert in New York recently and her beauty made an impression upon some of the movie magnates who were there. The result was the following telegram:

ROBERT GRAU, Universal Co.

Offer Lyne $60,000 for moving pictures. Wire immediate reply.

Mr. Cahill, on behalf of Miss Lyne, refused the offer upon the grounds that he had already closed a contract with the reorganized Boston Opera Company and because he wants Miss Lyne to sing in all the big American cities before she accepts a motion picture contract.

Miss Lyne read of the offer in the newspapers and immediately began to bombard Cahill with telegrams ordering him to accept, but he has refused to move from his position and says she will thank him some day.

Miss Lyne will be heard in Boston with the Pavlowa Boston Opera Company and will also appear in the Tremont Temple concert course.

Clinton Schools Get Second U. S. Rank

CLINTON, Sept. 25.—Clinton public schools rank second in the United States in sanitary efficiency, according to a report Dr. Eugene Kelley, representative of the State Board of Health, made to Thomas Gibbons, superintendent of schools, and Dr. James H. Kirby, school physician.

Dr. Kelley inspected the sanitary conditions of the schools. He found a school physician and nurse in attendance and eight dispensaries, where the children are attracted by Miss Evelyn O'Malley, school nurse.

Dr. Kelley said there was only one city in the United States where dispensaries are provided and children treated and that was in New York.

BROOKLYN CIVIC CLUB VISITORS SEE BOSTON

Thirty members of the Brooklyn Civic Club arrived in Boston today as joint guests of the city and the Boston City Club.

The party, which arrived on the steamship Massachusetts of the Metropolitan line, was met at the pier by a committee headed by W. T. A. Fitzgerald, representing the City Club, and Standish Wilcox, secretary to the Mayor, representing the city.

The visitors were driven in autos to City Hall where an informal reception was tendered them by Mayor Curley and the heads of departments.

Following the reception the visitors were taken on an automobile tour of the city's park system, under the personal direction of Chairman John H. Dillon of the Park Department and Commissioner Murphy of Public Works Department.

With the completion of the trip at Fort Hill square at noon an exhibition drill was given by a picked squad of Boston firemen, under the direction of Fire Commissioner Grady.

The program for the afternoon included a luncheon at the Boston City Club, a tour of the harbor in the steamer Monitor, and an exhibition drill and playout by the Boston fireboats.

The visitors will be escorted to the south Station in time to catch the 6 o'clock train to New York.

The visiting delegation is headed by Lewis H. Pounds, president of the borough of Brooklyn. Others in the party are: Jacob C. Klinck, president of the Brooklyn Civic Club; Dr. Thomas D. Riley, secretary of the Brooklyn Civic Club; Frederick B. Pratt, chairman of the Brooklyn City Planning Board; Ralph Jones, president of the Tower Manufacturing Company of New York; William K. Swartz, manager of the Brooklyn Banking Department of the Lawyers Title and Trust Company; John B. Creighton, secretary to the president of the borough; John F. Cels, ex-secretary of the Brooklyn League; Raymond V. Ingersoll, commissioner of the Brooklyn Park System; A. J. O'Neil, superintendent of the Brooklyn Branch of the Tenement House Department of the City of New York; Thomas E. Clark, Clarence B. Smith, Clifford F. Chevalier, Edward H. Wilson, George U. Tompers, Henry B. Seaman, Phillip M. Bromberg R. Diamond, George Dressler, Max Herzfeld, George W. Pople, S. W. Ball, E. H. Hazelwood, William F. Ittner, Hans von Kaltzenborn and John H. Harman.

Mitchell Employes in Annual Banquet

The annual banquet of the Custom Cutters' Association of Mitchell the Tailor will be held tomorrow evening at the Georgian. During the banquet there will be a display of made-up garments portraying the styles of the Fall and early Winter of 1916. Among the invited guests are Governor Walsh, Mayor Curley, former Mayor Fitzgerald, C. F. Osgood and Major Patrick F. O'Keefe of the Pilgrim Publicity Association. J. Caul McDonald, president of the association, will preside.

Miss Donalda of San Carlo Company Stars in 'Carmen'

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Those who were lucky enough to attend the San Carlo performance of "Carmen" at the Opera House last night, made the acquaintance of a fine artist in this most difficult of roles.

Pauline Donalda, who has appeared in Hammerstein's companies is a brilliant actress and a very good singer. She knows all the traditions of Carmen, she is gifted with gypsy features and vivacity, and she has a rich, mellow mezzo-soprano which she uses with fine intelligence.

Miss Donalda's Carmen seemed to stimulate the other artists, for a very spirited and satisfying performance was given. Chorus and orchestra were in accord and Guerrieri conducted admirably.

Agostini, the tenor, made an agreeable impression as Jose; Picco sang with authority and poor tone as Escamillo. Maria Fara was a very negative Micaela. The small parts were all well taken.

Runaways' World Tour Cut Short

Four Charlestown boys who ran away from home to see the big world, were rounded up by the police early today, scarcely a mile from home. The boys are John J. Boyle, No. 14 Derr street; John J. Bush, No. 94 Main street; William J. Marston, Belmont street and James J. Gallagher, No. 6 Wall street. They were found cold and shivering on Exchange street and taken to the Court Square station.

MYSTERY: IS HENRY FORD IN BOSTON?

Renewed inquiry was made in Boston today for Henry Ford, the Detroit automobile manufacturer and vigorous opponent of the Anglo-French loan, who was expected here yesterday afternoon from New York City, but who has apparently gone into retirement for the past twenty-four hours.

A dispute between Mr. Ford and Professor Herschel C. Parker, the explorer and scientist, over the question whether Mr. Ford or Professor Parker originated the idea of a "pill" submarine, has made the public all the more eager to hear anew from the automobile maker.

Professor Parker made a statement that a letter and interview he gave out on June 13 furnished Mr. Ford with his submarine idea.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Ford, who was at a hotel in New York city with Mrs. Ford, was quoted as saying:

NEVER SAW PROFESSOR.

"I never saw Professor Parker. I never heard of him until this morning. Who is he, any..w?"

This caustic disposal of his claim promptly drew from Professor Parker a sarcastic rejoinder. Manhattan reporters trotted back to the hotel to see Mr. Ford again. They were told by Mrs. Ford that he had gone. She said:

"He has left town, that is all. I shall start for Detroit tomorrow morning and Mr Ford will join me on the train at Albany."

An acquaintance of Mr. Ford remarked: "He may have gone to Boston."

That seemed reasonable, for it dovetailed with Mrs. Ford's statement that her husband would join her at Albany on her way from New York up to Detroit. Albany would be a natural intersecting point for a husband starting from Boston to join his wife on a trip from New York to Detroit. And Mr. Ford has a branch factory in Greater Boston, whose staff would be only too glad to see the head of its activities.

FORD EXPECTED HERE.

The assumption was made in New York, and telegraphed to Boston, that Mr. Ford was coming on the Knickerbocker Limited to Boston. He didn't.

Then he was doubtless coming at 6 o'clock.

He didn't, either.

Nor did he arrive in the evening, so far as is known.

It is not certain, of course, that Mr. Ford did not slip through the reception committees of reporters which met the New York trains at Back Bay and South Station. But the reporters couldn't locate him. Nor did any clerks in the leading hotels know anything of him.

Mr. Ford's Cambridge branch has had no word from him all the time. It has merely been bombarded with newspaper inquiries.

It was understood that Mr. Ford was accompanied on his supposed journey to Boston by W. H. Vantine, a well-known architect, who is designing a costly mansion to be built for Mr. Ford in Detroit.

In lieu of the non-arrival of Mr. Ford in Boston, it has been concluded by some that he stopped over in some of the manufacturing centres en route, Hartford or Springfield on the inland route, or Providence on the shore trip.

OPPOSES BIG LOAN.

There is high financial interest now in Mr. Ford's vigorous opposition of the Anglo-French loan, for he is a factor to be reckoned with in banking circles.

The Ford company is regarded as the largest bank depositor in the country holding accounts subject to check. It is estimated that the amounts held subject to check in the various institutions are as high as $30,000,000.

It is understood that several banks in Chicago have been forced to give up their business with the Ford company, as they did not know and couldn't foretell what moment the company would send in a check calling for a million in cash.

Before leaving New York yesterday Mr. Ford gave out the following interview on the proposed loan:

"If I find any of the banks in which my company or myself have deposits taking part in the proposed loan to the allies, I will immediately close our accounts. I won't have any part of my personal funds, or the Ford Company funds, directly or indirectly, aiding the flotation of this loan."

WOULD "TIN-CAN" COMMISSION.

"If I had my way," he continued, "I would tie a tin can to this joint Anglo-French Commission and chase it back to Europe.

"One of my strong objections is that the foreign commissioners are trying to raise a huge loan without putting up real security. They might have some sort of an excuse if they had brought over with them a batch of American securities and then proceeded to the business of borrowing our money.

"Why, you know who is back of this loan proposition and making every effort to win its favor with the American people. It is the militarist. He sees big profits in the scheme. Most New York newspapers are favoring the loan because they are controlled by the militarists.

"The British war loan is dangerous because it will connect the American people with the war. It is hardly to be expected that a nation with its pocketbook at stake can remain peaceful.

"If England wants the money, why doesn't she bring the American securities she holds over here and sell them? Why does she hold on to our securities and yet come over here and try to borrow money without any security except chances of victory?"

WHAT IS GOING ON IN BOSTON CHURCHES

Preparations for the Boston Laymen's Convention in Tremont Temple, November 14-17, are well under way. Committee meetings have been held during the week to consider plans to make the gathering profitable to all the churches in Greater Boston.

Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger, chairman of the executive committee, said:

"This is one of seventy different conventions of this type to be held in various large centres of the country during the coming Winter. The overturning of established business, as well as the social and religious conditions, by the war in Europe, makes evident the need of prompt action to meet the emergency and to arouse all the churches in Eastern Massachusetts to an active share, each one of them, in the general advance for better religious and public life. This will be the prominent aim of this convention."

Information about the convention may be obtained from the executive secretary, Charles C. Merrill, room 714, Ford Building.

Co-operating with this convention is the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, No. 53 Mt. Vernon stret.

Reports of the attendance at Boston churches for the past eight months give gratifying signs of increase. The largest attendance at all services is at Tremont Temple. Park Street Church in its Sunday evening services is well attended. Christ Church, Salem street, is better attended on the first Sunday in the month than on any other Sunday.

King's Chapel having been closed for part of the Summer, no record was taken.

St. Paul's Cathedral has had as many as a thousand persons in front of the church during the musical part of its opening service this Summer, when the vested choir rendered many well known hymns.

Last Sunday evening many were turned away from Clarendon Street Baptist Church, where the Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters of New York is drawing crowds by his discourses.

The return from his vacation of the Rev. Dr. William H. van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent, has materially increased the congregation at that church.

The First Baptist Church on Commonwealth avenue has been closed nearly two months, but the Fall and Winter work among the students has already opened out with evident signs of renewed interest.

The Rev. Lucy C. McGee, pastor of the Church of the Higher Life, has returned from the Pacific coast, where she has lectured during the Summer. She delivered the opening address at the International New Thought Congress in San Francisco on New Thought Day. Referring to the exposition, she says:

"It is the last word in loving ideal and enlightened co-operation. Its superb beauty surpasses even the child's imagination of 'Fairy land.'" The services at her church will be resumed tomorrow.

The Rev. Levi M. Powers, pastor of the Gloucester Universalist Church who has spent the past three months in Berlin, Germany, writes in a letter, the following, which appears in the Universalist Leader:

"Here, as in America, vast numbers of people have withdrawn from the church, not because they are not religious, but because they consider the church too formal and too little responsive to the needs of the laborers.

"In this respect I believe the freer churches of America are in a much better position to readjust themselves to the needs of the times than the churches in Germany. But religion manifests itself not alone through the church, but in every expression of life."

Drama sermons will be given every month in the Mattapan Baptist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. T. L. Frost. The topic for Sunday evening, October 3, is "His Brother's Keeper."

Dr. Frost and the Rev. Dr. Kempton of Cambridge are the only ministers in Massachusetts who have had marked success in this type of sermon.

Mrs. Anne Young-Huntress of the Metaphysical Club of the Back Bay will give her talk on "Practical Living" on Tuesday, October 5, at 11 a. m., in the rooms of the society on Huntington avenue. A healing service of ten minutes will follow her address.

* * *

The Rev. Elmer A. Leslie has accepted the pastorate of the Medford Hillside Methodist Church.

* * *

Miss H. Pearl Thirkield, daughter of Bishop W. P. Thirkield of the Methodist Church, has entered the social service department of the Hull Street Settlement in this city.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Wallace MacMullen of Drew Theological Seminary will speak before the first meeting of the Boston Social Union of the M. E. Church, October 18.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. G. R. Maguire, F. R. G. S., of the Ruggles Street Baptist Church, will give his African experience before the Methodist ministers of Greater Boston, Monday, in Wesleyan Hall.

* * *

Swami Paramananda, head of the Vedanta Centre of Boston, will deliver his first lecture of this season tomorrow morning at the regular service held in the chapel of the Centre at 11 a. m. His subject will be "The Secret of Right Living." He will also give a short address at the vesper service, the hour of which has been changed from 5 p. m. to 8 p. m., and on Tuesday, at the same hour, he will begin an interesting course of "Lessons from the Bhagavad-Gita," the great Scripture of India. This, like the Sunday service, is open to the public.

* * *

The vestry of the Ballardvale Methodist Church during the Summer has been enlarged with an addition of a kitchen and cloak room, the young men of the church doing most of the hard work. They have also laid out a tennis court, which will be in good working order by the Spring.

Bringing Up Father

By George McManus

Gowdy Will Soon Be Able to Get in Game

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25.—"Hank" Gowdy, after all, will probably be able to do some more receiving for the Braves this season. He injured his right hand in the second Cincinnati game and in the first frame he was through for the campaign.

Gowdy worked out with the Braves in practice yesterday, and Manager Stallings states today that he looks for the lanky backstop to be able to perform in next week's big series with the Phillies in Boston.

WORLD'S SERIES GOSSIP

THE Red Sox management is laying out a new system for handling applications for World's Series tickets. The "fans" can rest assured it will be an improvement on the 1912 plan.

THE "fans" should not send money until they receive word that tickets have been allotted them, which will be some time yet.

J. J. L. to J. F. G.: "I accept your generous offer for the use of Braves Field during the World's Series games if the Red Sox are fortunate enough to win the pennant."

IT will be Lewiston, Me., strategy against the wiles of Fitchburg, Mass., if the Red Sox and Phillies are the October contestants. Willie Carrigan and Moran as opposite managers it will be an all-New England affair as far as helmsmen are concerned.

IF would be the Phillies' first pennant in thirty-two years, or since they entered the National League. The Athletics have won five flags in fifteen years.

THEY'RE STRONG FOR 'ALICK' ON BROADWAY

By DAMON RUNYON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Just one serious problem in baseball strategy will confront the Boston Red Sox if they meet the Phils in the World's Series next month. That problem solved the Sox's route to the two-league championship is as wide open and exposed as the new Seventh avenue subway.

All they have to do is to devise ways and means of whipping "Alick," otherwise G. C. Alexander, well named The Great. Let the rest of the dope run for our old friend, Ed Sweeney. Lick "Alick" and win a world's title, and $30,000, more or less.

It sounds simple enough. It sounds much easier than the involved problems usually presented by a World's Series, such as interior baseball, individual comparisons, in-and-outfield deficiencies, the effect of the low down drop vs. the high neck cut, and so forth, and so on.

IT SOUNDS SIMPLE.

It sounds so simple that it almost makes us laef, but it is not, in fact, as simple as it listens.

You would be amazed at the strange aversion for getting licked that is entertained by "Alick." Never a man in baseball averred to such an extent as this product of the wide dung fields of old Nebraska.

He is what you might call touchy on the subject.

Not that he can't be licked, of course, but such is his abhorrence of a licking that any time it is accomplished you generally read the story of a desperate resistance.

When they lick "Alick" they lick a real baseball fighting man. They lick a regular soldier of the sodded field. They lick one of the greatest pitchers that ever mounted a mound, and one of the most competent.

And when Boston licks "Alick," if Boston does that thing, she will be trimming Philadelphia's flame of hope down to a thin little smolder.

YES, MAY GET "HIS."

No pitcher of the Red Sox compares with Grover Cleveland Alexander in point of efficiency on the run of a season. He may be outpitched in the world's series, but we stand to that statement just the same. And we don't believe he is going to be outpitched, at that.

In physical ability, and in knowledge of his craft, it is our opinion that the great side-armer of the Phils stands head and shoulders above the other pitchers of the National League this year—the Matheson of his era.

Of the American League hurlers, one man, and one man alone, in our opinion, is in the same class for all-around efficiency with the big corn-husker, and that is Walter Johnson.

Master Rudolph in Town.

"Dutch" Rudolph, the Braves' crack right-hander, is back in Boston, having been shipped home by Manager Stallings after Thursday's game in Pittsburgh. He stoutly declares that the 1914 Champs may yet get up and come through.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

BY RIGHT FIELD.

NOT that we shall ever be asked to name the Merkle series umpires, but if it were left to us we would have half a mind to pick "Hank" O'Day and the three "Hills"—Evans, Dineen and Klem.

IF Pat Moran comes through, as there will be heartbreaks in several corners of our fair land. Knabe and Doolan, who jumped to the Feds, will smash their teeth. "Hans" Lobert got his wish and joined in with the Giants. Now he will be telling his woes to Broadway. Whitted shaved in the Braves' cut last year, got the equivalent of a World's Series share for not making a fuss about being sent to Mernin in the Maxee deal, and now is figuring he will get two W. S. shares, besides his salary, this year. Then Dugey also is a lucky guy.

MORE people in Philadelphia are watching the bulletin boards for the Phillies' games than are paying to see the Macks play the game, or attempt to. Many of the "fans" believe that Mack has done altogether too much experimenting this year. They say, for instance, that if Mack had nominated a third baseman some time in June and then coached him along he would have a third sacker that would do for next year. But Mack has often picked out a player, put him on the hot corner for a day and then hurled him into oblivion. This probably doesn't do his regulars any good, for they apparently don't know a rookie's first name before he is tagged to the bush.

STILL, Mack has always had some pretty definite ideas what he was doing and why, and has stuck to his policies despite all criticism. The unrelated fact remains that he draws his income, outside of his stock earnings—such as they be—by playing—for managing the ball club. This should give Bostonese time in which to consider other weighty matters pressing on their attention.

WITH Lajoie on third, two out and Healy at bat in a game between the Macks and Indians at Shibe Park recently, a freak play was staged. The count was two balls and two strikes, when Garret made a pitch which struck in front of the plate. Haley saw his chance, swung at the ball and ran for first. The ball hit Catcher O'Neill's protector and rolled toward Garret, who ran to the base line and touched Lajoie, who had started home. Thus Garret saved himself a wild pitch, Haley reached first on a batted third strike and Lajoie's out retired the side all on one play.

THE Cubs are thinking of buying a mask for "Bob" Fisher when he plays again. His nose was broken, set, rebroken and reset and he was just getting well when, in a game with New York, a wicked grounder from Fletcher's bat took a mean hop and hit Fisher in the right eye. The optic and vicinity are now parti-colored.

JOHNS, one of the most talked of men with the White Sox, is eligible to play in the Chicago city series, which is governed by World's Series rules, while Alex McCarthy of the Cubs did not join in until September 4 and cannot play. To have oozed into the series the ex-Pirate would have to have been in the Bresnahan squad before September 1. Some folks say Johns is the best third baseman the White Sox have had in eight years. We hope Harry Lord doesn't hear it.

Many Positions Open on West Point Team

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 25.—With a host of husky candidates competing for vacancies on the line and in the back field, fierce competition is developing among the aspirants on the Army eleven. Among the quarterbacks Gerardi, the baseball man, and Murrill, the latter a "pieboy," are showing up well.

A pretty fight is on among the flankers. Hritton, Tully, Teale, Hudnutt and Kelly are among those in the van in the contest for the ends. The hole at tackle was filled by Parker, Tyler, Timberlake and Jones, all of whom are experienced. A hard scrimmage is planned for tomorrow.

Dave Shean Is to Be Wined and Dined

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 25.—Providence "fans," headed by Governor Beeckman and Mayor Gainer, are going to present Dave Shean, manager of the Grays, with a silver service at a dinner to be given in his honor at the Crown Hotel, next Thursday evening.

Shean is not held responsible for the Grays finishing in second place and the "fans" are going to encourage him for another year. Dave is a recent Benedict, and the silver service will enhance the value of his home at Arlington.

Williams Expects Big Score.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Sept. 25.—Coach Daly is confident Williams will roll up a comfortable score on Rensselaer "Poly" today. Yesterday's practice was clearly the banner one of the season.

Rabbit Hikes 'Round Advance of Runner

Two runners crossed the plate on a recent home run by "Jake" Thielman, formerly a star in the American and National Leagues, in St. Cloud, Minn., although Thielman was the first man up for St. Cloud.

Thielman hit a long one to centre and the ball struck a rabbit cavorting in the long grass near the fence. The rabbit ran toward the diamond, touching second base, and speeding up the base line a few jumps ahead of Thielman. Seeing the "batsman" crowd the rabbit rounded third and dashed across the plate with Thielman close upon his heels.

"If we'd had another base to go," said Thielman, "I would have had to tell the rabbit to get out of the way and let some one run that could run."

Calls McGraw a Has-Been.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—President James A. Gilmore of the Federal League denied that anyone connected with his circuit had made the reported offer of $200,000 or any other sum to John McGraw to manage a team.

"We want owners in our league, not has-beens," said Gilmore. "McGraw is through in New York. We shall have a real manager for our club there."

Reds Purchase Hard Hitter.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 25.—President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati baseball announced that John Beall, the heavy-hitting outfielder of the Milwaukee American Association team, has signed a contract to play with the Reds.

Centre A. A. After Games.

The Centre A. A. eleven of Dorchester wants to book games with out-of-town clubs. Address C. Colton, No. 220 Centre street, Dorchester.

BRAVES IN FINAL BATTLE IN WEST

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25.—The Braves play their last game of the season on Western soil today. That's not counting an exhibition game Manager Stallings has booked with an all-star amateur team in Cleveland tomorrow, where the chance of a monstrous "gate" is all to the merry, as the amateur article is drawing very heavily in the Forest City right now.

For today's getaway scrap with the Pirates, Stallings is counting upon using Southpaw Tyler, whose last two games have seen about the best of his existence, but who unfortunately cannot be bracketed. The member from Derry has twirled enough high class ball lately to have the Braves close enough to the Phillies to keep matters interesting. But his teammates cannot do any scoring behind him. Hence, Tyler cannot bring in any victories.

Don Carlos Pat Ragan is in the offing should the Miracle Man desire to switch to a luckier boxman.

"Babe" Adams is overdue to go to the hillock for the Pirates, and should the Mt. Morlah pride be an absentee lamb, Fred Hebert" Harmon will probably pass up the pellet. The season's battling between the Braves and Pirates now stands 11-7 in favor of the boys from Boston.

Yesterday was the second time that "Nifty" Nehf has shut out the Pirates, and each time the identical figures prevailed, 2 to 0. The first shutout occurred at Boston and Nehf was opposed by Al Mamaux, who divides with "Ginger" Alexander the limelight as the sensation of the year in the National League.

Touching on shutouts, it may be mentioned that this season the Braves have shut out the Pirates three times, while our boys applied the brush once. The Pirates were the first to perform the feat when, with Mamaux on the rubber, they shut out Hagan, 7 to 0, this time being opposed by Cooper. The two blanks by Nehf complete the record.

The central League twirler has faced the Pirates three times. On his first appearance he shut them out in the first full game he pitched for the Champions. This was at Boston August 21.

September 10 he faced them for the second time, but lasted only three innings, during which the Pirates got seven hits and scored five runs. He was relieved by Barnes, another recruit, and Pittsburgh won, 8 to 1. Nehf's third effort against the Pirates took place yesterday and he dealt out nine more nothings.

BRANCH RICKEY OPINES:

"THE St. Louis Browns are an 'in-and-out' club.

"When we get the pitching we are there with the best of them.

"I'll play nobody but my veterans against the Sox.

"Tilman and McAfee, the two youngsters I sent back home to wait till we get there for the city series, look like fine hurlers, but I've got to watch and see how they stand the strain of the 1914 campaign.

"Ain't Sisler some find?"

BALE OF ENVELOPES FROM SERIES LETTERS

One member of the Red Sox office staff has nothing to do all day but file applications for World's Series seats in a big cabinet that is fast filling up. The envelopes were taken under the grandstand, where the old paper is collected, and made a big bale in themselves.

"THE RABBIT'S COLUMN"

By Walter J. Maranville

SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25.—While everybody is out this way is conceding the National League pennant to the Phillies, anyone insinuating that we have given up is talking through his hat. I have said hundreds of times, and desire to repeat it here, that we will not throw up the sponge until the Morans have us shut out.

* * *

I REALIZE that our chances now are very slim, but while there's life there's hope, and until we are shown that we are mathematically beaten, then, and not until then, will any one be able to tell us different. As I said before in the AMERICAN, the hardest part of the Phillies' article is still ahead of them, and they may yet slip. If they do, then we will be ready to jump into the breach, for we are out to grab every game we can, with this last hope uppermost in our minds.

* * *

WE gained a half a game on the Phillies yesterday. I told you the Phillies would encounter trouble in Chicago, and I wouldn't be a bit surprised if they were set back again today. Bert Humphries, an old Quaker himself, let them down with four hits and carry a run yesterday. Moran's men came back in the second game, however, but Humphries' shutout clipped a half a game off their advantage.

* * *

ARTHUR NEHF is improving in every game. He pitched as pretty a contest yesterday as I have ever seen, and not once during the entire route did he show any signs of weakening. It was no easy game to win, either, as Kantlehner, the Pittsburgh southpaw, put great guns up to the last inning, when he faltered long enough to let us put the winning runs. Four hits were all that the Pirates were able to get off Nehf and seven of them went down on strikes.

* * *

MAMAUX, the Pirates' star hurler, blames the Braves for all his troubles this season, and he has good reasons, too. I am not positive, but I think if one were to look up Mamaux's record for the year, he will find out we have beaten him more times than any other team in the league, and probably more than all the others combined.

* * *

MAMAUX went along fine this season until he was threatened with appendicitis. This slowed him up considerably, but he is dodging the operation until the campaign is over. I wouldn't be surprised if he went to the hospital any day now, as the Pirates have only five more games to play.

* * *

EVERYBODY in Pittsburgh is sorry to see Fred Clarke go, but the Pirate manager is tired of baseball and is going back to his farm in Kansas, where he can forget his managerial duties and pay more attention to his crops. Fred is well off in this world's goods and has nothing to worry about.

* * *

WITH the going of Clarke, it is probable there will be a big shakeup in the Pittsburgh club. Of course, this is only hearsay, but I understand from pretty good authority that several of the players are none too popular with the "fans," and when another year rolls around you will find these men weeded out.

* * *

MANAGER McGRAW of the Giants made a wise move when he shelved Christy Mathewson for the remainder of the season. The kind of ball that Mathewson served up this season was not up to the Matheuson standard, but a good rest may bring the old arm around again.

Boston Girl Stands Even Chance to Win

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—Miss Alice Cunningham of the Longwood C. C. of Boston plays Miss Marion Cresswell of Philadelphia today in the challenge round for the women's tennis singles championship of Philadelphia and district.

In the final round Miss Cunningham played a star game and vanquished Mrs. Forest Kerbaugh, Belfield, 6—1, 3—6, 6—0.

Golf Honors for Tyng.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 25.—James A. Tyng, Baltusrol, Harvard's catcher, a quarter of a century ago, won the chief prize in the senior golf tournament on the Apawamis links when he defeated a total of 72 holes made early in the week, remained unbroken.

Tennis Champion Comes Back.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 25.—William M. Johnston, the national champion, broke even with Maurice E. McLoughlin in their exhibition here. Johnston won the first set, 6—4, and the Comet took the second, 7—5.

Hon. Zim Back in Game.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—The Hon. "Heinie" Zimmerman, after filing a 200-word telegram to President Tener, apologizing for his uncouth language towards Umpire Eason in a recent game on the West Side, has had his suspension lifted and plays today. Zimmerman has been out ten days.

Nehf Has Pirates' Number.

"Nifty" Nehf, the Braves' crack young southpaw, blanked the Pirates for the second time in his brief career as a big leaguer yesterday. Again was the tally 2 to 0.

BIG TRIO READY TO PLAN SERIES

By RIGHT FIELD.

The National Commission is awaiting the call to get together and arrange the details of the World's Series. It appears certain the meeting will be held during the latter part of next week, for by that time no mistake can be made as to what teams will clash for the honors of 1914.

Someone has said that ivory and uncertainty are the two principal products of baseball, so the National Commission holds off officially until Old Kid Mathematics gives the advance tip on the top teams in the Johnson and Tener circuits.

Naturally the Red Sox have the American League gonfalon cinched. Even Hughie Jennings admits it.

In the older league the Braves won't give up hope until after the verdict is in on their clash with the Phillies at Allston beginning next Wednesday.

The great cry that the Phillies are to cop finds no echo in Boston fandom until the last ray of hope goes glimmering.

A coin is flipped to decide the scene of the first battle, except, should it be the Braves who go to meet the Red Sox, all the games would be staged at Braves Field.

If it is Philadelphia vs. Boston, with the leagues reversed from last year, there would be two games to the city winning the toss and then two games in the other city. If more than four games are required the additional contests would be first in one city and then in the other.

The championship outfield of 1912—Speaker, Lewis and Hooper—is intact for this heavy clash. For wonderful catches, timely hitting and bullet-like throws we won't see a combination of three to beat them for many, many seasons.

World's Series gossip turns to the angle of what player is going to get the biggest pot of money out of his 1914 work in baseball.

Last year Captain Johnny Evers of the Braves netted some $40,000, taking into account World's Series money and everything. This year Grover Cleveland Alexander seems on the high road to fortune.

For grabbing off his thirtieth game Alexander the Great received a bonus of $1,000. He has more bonuses in sight, too.

Then, there is speculation as to who will pull the prize "bone" play of the Big Clash. In 1912 we had Meyers, Merkle and Snodgrass receiving adverse publicity. Last year our own John J. Evers erred.

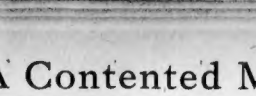

Who will get in wrong this year?

Ticket Rules Made Public.

Only "personal use" applications will be considered when it comes time for the Harvard A. A. management to dispose of tickets for the Harvard-Yale game. Such is the announcement coming from Cambridge today. Furthermore, the rule will be rigidly enforced, the authorities state.

Referee, W. S. Langford; umpire, C. J. McCarthy; field judge, W. H. Burke, Worcester P. I.; linesman, official, W. C. Olson, Lehigh.

Harvard pries open its 1915 football season at the Stadium this afternoon, clashing with Colby College, Maine's 1914 champions. Starting time is 3 o'clock.

The Harvard squad has been practicing for two weeks, and although the players have shown up well, the team is anything but a machine as yet. Head Coach Haughton is hoping that Myron Fuller, the former Yale man, who is serving his second season as Colby's football tutor, will have a team capable of making the Crimson travel at top speed.

Captain Eddie Mahan, "Dick" King and McKinlock will start the game in the backfield. Up until last night King was on probation, but now has a clean slate. The acquisition of King to the varsity is a big help to Haughton.

WATSON AT QUARTER.

"Dummy" Watson will open at quarter, but will doubtless be relieved by "Billy" Boles, and before the close of the game Whitney, Robinson and Enwright will succeed Mahan, King and McKinlock.

As Gilman's injured ankle is still bothering him, Charley Coolidge will be started at end, with Ernie Soucy manning the other wing. Parsons, Harte, Laurie Curtis, Likens and Hartley will be seen at the ends before the matinee is over, while Parsons, Hapglow, Dadmun and Lathrop will show at tackle.

Duncan and Cowen are rated the first string guards, so will start the game, but Burr and Snow will be substituted. Morrill Wiggins, who played centre on the 1915 Freshman team, will get in his first varsity game, and although he is the leading candidate for the pivot position, will give way to Moseley Taylor.

COLBY SHOULD BE CONFED.

Although Harvard has not shown any marked defensive strength this Fall, neither Coach Haughton or Captain Mahan expect any serious trouble from Colby.

The final practice of the week, held yesterday afternoon, was the hardest the squad has been given this season. Most of the time was spent drilling the men on offensive and defensive formations and kicking. The first and second elevens were sent into a short scrimmage.

During the punting practice Captain Mahan got away with some of the smacks, one of which carried fully seventy yards. "Bill" Robinson and Wilmot Whitney also displayed fine form in punting.

After the big game the substitutes on the Harvard first squad will play the second team a short game. The periods in the varsity game are to be 12 minutes each.

Harvard End Breaks Thumb in Scrimmage

Al Weatherhead, one of Harvard's most promising end candidates, is laid up with a broken thumb on his right hand and must skip the scrimmage practice until next week, before he is predicted by the AMERICAN, "Swede" Nelson, a former English High star, has been promoted to the varsity by Head Coach Haughton.

Brawley Going in at End.

WORCESTER, Sept. 25.—Captain Ed Brawley, Holy Cross' centre the past three years, will figure at an end in today's contest with Bates. Brawley star halfback on the 1914 eleven, will be on the other wing. All four backs starting off are freshmen. Andrejesic, ex-Boston College, will be at centre, with Guards Lynch and O'Keefe the only veterans in the line.

Cadets Are Hard at It.

WEST POINT, Sept. 25.—Head Coach Daly and his assistants gave the Cadet a strenuous workout and the squad showed improved form. Murrill, a plebe, and Gerhardt, the baseball star, are the favored candidates for quarterback.

WELCOME ARNICA AND CRUTCHES; WELCOME!

By ED CURLEY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—In many parts of this free land this afternoon on many whitewashed greenwards, many ambitious youth, clad in padded moleskins, will prance around in the most violent manner, all determined to work havoc on many oddshaped leathers. All of which means that football is with us again.

The "Big Three"—Harvard, Yale and Princeton—start off the season facing elevens that will give them good stiff practice. The most interesting battle of all is expected between the Tigers and Georgetown.

This will be the first meeting between Princeton and the Washington boys. According to the dope from the capital, the boys are well-trained in the different angles of the game; are possessed of plenty of speed and carry good weight.

RUSH MAKES DEBUT.

This game will also mark the first appearance of Johnny Rush, the Princeton coach, as a leader of gridiron tactics in the East. Incidentally, the battle will give a fairly good line on the prospects of the Tigers for the next few weeks.

Harvard gets its first real workout with Colby, and it is figured that the Crimson eleven will have no difficulty in vanquishing its opponents. At the same time the workout will do more good than all the practice matches of the past few weeks.

The tackle Mahan, which means little, for last season the Blue subdued Maine, 20 to 0. Penn will hook up West Virginia.

COLD DAYS HELPED.

The past few cold days helped the big teams considerably in getting into shape, and the various elevens are pretty close to perfect physical trim, and the men are fit to battle hard for dear old Alma Mater.

There will be quite some changes in the personnel of the big teams, for many of the stars of the 1914 season have faded away with diplomas, but the applicants for places seem to have been so numerous that it is more than probable a few real heroes will be developed when the season starts seething.

Welcome, arnica and crutches, welcome!

Semmens Back with Tigers.

PRINCETON, Sept. 25.—Semmens, the 1913 varsity centre, has been declared eligible by the Princeton faculty and the "rooters" are beside themselves with joy.

Syracuse Will Be Idle.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 25.—Syracuse will be idle today, as Hobart canceled its date.

The American Again First with Sporting News

Once again the AMERICAN calls attention to the excellence of its sporting pages.

Yesterday afternoon the AMERICAN was the only paper to announce the victory of the St. Louis Browns over the Boston Browns and the Braves' win over Pittsburgh. Also the latest scores in the American, National and Federal Leagues.

This paper also exclusively announced that Manager Jennings of the Detroit Tygers had conceded the American League pennant to the Red Sox.

The AMERICAN also was first to announce the reported match between Baldwin and White.

This paper is the only paper in New England to carry the race results and entries the day of the races.

The above mentioned exclusive news stories but illustrate the thoroughness of the AMERICAN'S sporting service.

You must read the AMERICAN if you want the paper that is always FIRST WITH THE LATEST.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 25.—Many new faces will be seen in the Yale lineup against the University of Maine this afternoon. For this reason, if no other, followers of the Elis await with interest the result.

Only one man—and he by accident—is playing in a position he filled last year against Harvard. He is Walden, at right guard, who took the place of Kent in last year's battle. All the other men are in new positions. Captain Wilson is stationed at left halfback.

Wanted-Punter; Otherwise Green Eleven Is O. K.

HONOVER, Sept. 25.—Dartmouth gets into action this afternoon with the Massachusetts "Aggies," its time-honored opening foe. Though Head Coach Cavanaugh lost fourteen of his 1914 letter men by graduation, he hands upon having his usual winner. Cavanaugh likes the looks of his line, but is not sure of his strength on the ends and in the backfield.

Curtis and Whitney, who did the kicking last Fall, have left and are bound to be missed. Worthington, the big green's star bread-jumper, has been punting well in practice and may prove the hope of the eleven. Right Halfback Gerrish, injured in a recent scrimmage, is expected to start the game, with Duhamel and Thielscher as his partners and "Dick" Holbrook calling the plays.

Baxter, second string centre last Fall, will hold down the berth, for the present anyhow. Spears, practically a unanimous choice for All-Collegiate guard a year ago, is thirty pounds lighter, but in rare trim. Merrill, also of the 1914 eleven, will be Mears' mate.

Captain McAuliffe and Tom Cotton remain on the ends, with Lovejoy, while Dinsmoor, end on the 1918 team, and "Dick" Pudrith, shifted from tackle, will start on the two ends.

Melrose Captain Set Down.

Captain Fillmore of Melrose High has fallen behind in his studies and been declared ineligible to fill his post by the faculty. Burton Nowell will pilot the eleven until Fillmore's successor is elected.

No Scores in This Game.

Weymouth High and Abington High engaged in a 0-0 battle in their contest at East Weymouth. Two ten-minute and two nine-minute periods were played. It was a stiff scrap all the way.

CRUISERWEIGHT CLASS WOULD BENEFIT BOXING

By JESS WILLARD,
Heavyweight Champion of the World.

Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.

The American Boxing Association, formed recently in Cleveland, may work a great deal of good for the boxing game. For one thing, if this organization gains universal recognition, it will save us many sleepless nights. This association has established a cruiserweight, or light heavyweight class, and if the men scaling from 160 to 172 pounds become involved in an elimination series to decide the rightful holder of the championship in that division, it will then be immune from the persistent challenges of the middleweights, who are sure to challenge me when I am ready to re-enter the ring.

It takes an elastic imagination to visualize a 160-pound fighter challenging one tipping the beam at 240 pounds; but there is no telling in many instances where the lighter man will go in order to get a little publicity.

I fully expect to be challenged, defied, and otherwise molested by the middleweights and light heavyweights unless the cruiserweight class is permanently established. The reason I am prepared for the verbal assault of the small men (compared to me) is because by so doing they would only be following precedent.

FITZSIMMONS WON TITLE.

From time immemorial, or since time fighting began, the weight class has been the custom for heavyweight champions to be challenged by much lighter men. And in many instances, mere middleweights have been given a chance at the heavyweight title. But this only in cases where the heavyweight champion scaled less than 200 pounds ringside.

Only once has a middleweight been successful in wresting also the heavyweight championship. That man was Bob Fitzsimmons, who held three titles at the same time—the middleweight, light heavy and heavyweight—following his defeat of Jim Corbett. But Fitz weighed few pounds more than Ruby Robert, so the advantage was not so greatly in favor of the Cornishman.

Stanley Ketchel, than whom there was no more tenacious battler, came within a punch of winning the heavyweight championship the while he was the possessor of the middleweight crown. When he floored Jack Johnson, then in the heyday of his powers, in that eleventh round, looked as if Ketchel had duplicated Fitzsimmons' feat, but the "Michigan Assassain" forgot himself for a few brief moments as Johnson was arising, and he plunged headlong into a terrific right uppercut, and a knockout. It was one of the cleanest punches ever landed by Johnson, although he did manage to plant a few good ones on me before I laid him low in that memorable twenty-sixth round at Havana.

BURNS MADE MISTAKE.

When Tommy Burns was heavyweight king, by grace of his victory over Marvin Hart, to whom Jeffries awarded the title upon his retirement from the ring—which, by the way, should have been officially recognized by the boxing element—little Tommy was bombarded with challenges from middleweight fighters. But Tommy ignored them, and chose to take on heavier men. He finally made the mistake of tackling Johnson. At that Tommy put up a brui sing battle against the madras giant until the police stopped hostilities to save Burns, who was in danger of being knocked out.

Johnson had his troubles considering the challenges from men forty to fifty pounds lighter than himself. And I expect to be bothered likewise unless the American Boxing Association makes a factor in the game, and its cruiserweight class is taken seriously.

The Coffeys are after me. This I learn from an article I perused the other day. It stated that Jim Coffey, who may be my first opponent, has a brother in Dublin who is more of a fighter than is Jim. Coffey's brother is a traffic policeman, and when he heard how well Brother Jim was faring in the fighting game, he was ready to resign from the force and track for America.

JIM'S BROTHER THE BEST.

When Coffey's kin got word of his knockout of Al Reich and the $5,000 that accompanied that victory, Jim's brother could restrain himself no longer. He immediately issued an ultimatum to Brother Jim, which ran, in effect, like this:

"Why, I can lick Jim the best day he ever saw, and if I was over there now I would show this Mr. Willard that I, and not Jim, should get first crack at him. But I am willing for Jim to get ahead and win the heavyweight title from Willard, and then I'll take it away from Jim."

Which would make the heavyweight championship quite a family affair for the Coffeys if all Jim's brother says should come true. But I am not in the least worried. I will be ready for Coffey, or any other logical contender, just as soon as a suitable purse is offered me.

Frank Moran and Jim Coffey have started real training for their contest at Madison Square Garden on October 19, and I hope to be at the ringside when the two leading challengers get into action. If I can arrange it, I shall be right there at the writing board giving my impressions of the fight to the readers of the Hearst newspapers.

CRIMSON CHAT

THE news that Dick King had been re-instated to the ranks of the eligible candidates was received with great joy at Cambridge. King is one of the best backs on the squad, and when on probation caused great worry in the camp.

AS college has not been officially opened, King has been working out daily with the varsity, and therefore is in condition.

FROM the fine form Captain Mahan is showing in punting, it looks as if he was set to have the best season of his long career. Yesterday he booted one spiral that carried seventy yards.

ERNIE Soucy bears a striking resemblance to Ralph Glidden, the former Dartmouth and all-American end, both in appearance and action.

J. A. GILMAN, who played tackle on the 1913 varsity, but on account of trouble with the office last Fall did not go out for the team, will get into the scrimmage Monday. "Gilly" has been bothered with a bad ankle.

CHARLEY Linehan's Rindge eleven held a practice scrimmage against the "R" team of Harvard's second squad yesterday on Soldier's Field. Neither team displayed a great deal of ability. No scoring was done.

PRINCETON, Sept. 25.—Coach Rush did not have the Princeton eleven do any scrimmaging yesterday, but he put the men through about as stiff a practice as possible. For two hours he had them on the jump all the time. They were drilled in charging, blocking, punting and passing for a solid hour.

Then he divided the squad into five teams and ran up and down the field for about an hour in one of the snappiest signal practices since the training began. Although a mere practice, it fore a game is a decided innovation for Princeton. Today's game will be the first time Princeton has played Georgetown since 1905, when the Tigers won by a 6 to 0 score.

Captain Glick will start the game at quarter, but it is doubtful whether he will play long, as his injured ankle is still troubling him.

There is a big batch of spicy school games on today's card. From a Boston viewpoint chief interest centres in the Boston Latin-Hyde Park clash on the latter's gridiron.

Coach O'Brien has put together a peppery squad and is confident it will give a good account of itself, and land the victor. Coach Edmonston, Hyde Park's new football tutor, is proving himself a good drillmaster and the make-up of the team on the look for Boston Latin to bump into quite a surprise.

The game at Malden between Malden High and Wellesley High should be a humdinger. Somerville High also plays its first game, going on with Marlboro High.

Practically all the Suburban League teams will also get underway. It's sure a big day on the gridiron and the Sunday AMERICAN will cover all the junior battles in thorough fashion.

Brookline High Hooks On.

Brookline High opened its season by beating Lexington High, 7 to 6, on the Brookline campus. Quarterback Collier went over for the touchdown in the first period and O'Hearn kicked goal. Thereafter the two elevens engaged in a battle royal with neither goal line seriously threatened.

THE FOOTBALL SCRIBES

By GEORGE PHAIR.

"The football scribes are writing,
Their daily dope inditing,
And all their dope
Is full of hope
And really most delighting.

"The scribes are all enthusing,
They have no thoughts of losing
They say: "We'll win!"
And make us grin
For it is most amusing.

"I wonder, in November,
If they will remember
The brand of dope
So full of hope
They wrote us in September.

ROBINSON'S WORK NOW SHOWN

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Has it ever occurred to you that Wilbert Robinson was one of the main reasons for the pennant winning accomplishments of the Giant machines of 1911, 1912 and 1913?

Here are a few young facts that you can absorb if you wish:

Somewhere along in 1909 Robinson began to coach the Giant twirlers in his odd moments. In 1910 he went to the training camp with the New York outfit but didn't do any regular coaching during the season. The Giants played fine baseball in 1909 and 1910, but the pitchers didn't go strong enough to win a pennant.

In 1911, however, Robinson became the acknowledged boss of the Giant pitchers. He worked day after day with the youngsters. And in 1911 the Giants won the pennant. In 1912—with Robinson holding down the coaching job—they won another and in 1913 they won the third pennant in a row.

ROBINSON TAMED THE WILD.

The reason for the victorious battling of the Giants was that the pitchers showed up in grand form. It was in 1911 that Marquard, once as wild as a Cannibal Island chieftain, pitched throughout the season for an average of .774. In 1912 Marquard, coached by Robinson, won nineteen straight.

In 1913 Tesreau joined the Giants. He, too, was wild, but Robinson tamed him and developed him into one of the greatest pitchers in the league. And Robinson kept Marquard in line for a pitching average around .700.

"Al" Demaree joined the Giants in 1912, was turned over to Robinson for training and quickly burst forth as the pitching sensation of the National League, finishing the season with an average of .778.

Robinson quit the Giants in the Fall of 1913 and became manager of the Dodgers when the 1914 season opened. What happened?

PITCHERS "CRACK."

The Giant pitching staff in 1914 without Robinson's coaching went to pieces in midseason. Marquard, who had pitched for a grand average of .771 during the three years that Robinson coached him, cracked in twenty-two days in midseason and finished the 1914 season with an average of .353, winning only twelve games out of thirty-four. Demaree, the "sensation, flivved," winning only ten out of the twenty-seven games in which he worked and finally was traded to the Phillies.

The 1915 season finds the Robinsonless Giant pitchers still floundering—and worse than ever. Tesreau is erratic, Marquard is pitching weird baseball, and none of the Giant youngsters, although they show a lot of natural stuff, have been able to deliver. The Giant pitching staff's weakness has been the prime cause of the downfall of the one-time peerless outfit.

Two New Teams Are in Amateur Bowling League

The annual meeting of the Amateur Boston Pin League was held at the Boston City Club and the make-up of the body for the coming season was perfected.

The clubs making up the circuit are Arlington Road Club, Beacon City Club, Colonials of Dorchester, Cottage Park Yacht Club, Dorchesters, Oxfords of Lynn, Windsors of Watertown and Winthrop Yacht Club.

The new members are the Dorchesters and Windsors, who succeed the A. A. and Dudleys.

The officers elected were: President, Dr. E. E. Heuse; vice-president, John J. Hoyt; treasurer, Charles G. Nazro; secretary, O. C. Moseley.

A schedule calling for twenty-one weeks' rolling, commencing October 25, will be announced shortly.

Events on Wollaston Links.

The links of the Wollaston Golf Club will be the scene of a handicap tournament, medal play, next Wednesday, with a handicap vs. par event going on the following day. Post entries will be received, announces Secretary S. B. Reed.

BRITTON-LEWIS WILL ATTRACT BIG JAM

It looks like a monstrous house at the Atlas A. A. for next Tuesday evening's fuss between Jack Britton of Chicago and Ted (Kid) Lewis of England, and the members of the organization care not a whoop whether or not the boxers come in at the 138-pounds notch, as, it is daily announced by the management, has been settled upon. Britton is a shade or two heavier than Lewis. He may be able to make 138, and may make it this time. But he can be relied upon coming in over the figure again unless Manager Danny Morgan puts up a hefty forfeit. The prescribed notch is easy for Lewis. The speed marvel from England has been making Boston his home for the past fortnight. He is training faithfully and states he will not only make it two straight over Britton, but will just about stop the Chicago boy this trip. Maybe so and maybe no. The "Fatsey" Haley award in Lewis' favor didn't meet with over 40 per cent. approbation and the betting will probably be even money, take your pick. Britton, same as always, is doing his preliminary work in New York.

COMES to bat Jimmy Johnston.

Lewis' manager, in a long, windy letter to the AMERICAN from headquarters in New York. Bits of it follow:

"Dan Morgan, manager of Jack Britton, communed to howl immediately after the last fight between Britton and Lewis, claiming the referee made a big mistake in giving the fight to Lewis, but you must remember Mr. Morgan thinks that Britton defeated Ad Wolgast in Milwaukee and Packey McFarland in Chicago, and that is the height of boxing. Mr. Morgan said that Lewis would be afraid to sign for another match. Now, to prove that Mr. Morgan is wrong as to his conception of Lewis I have agreed to fight Britton at his own weight and for the terms that the club offered, and I am fully convinced Lewis can lick him.

"Lewis has never been extended since arriving in this country. He has met and defeated three of America's greatest lightweights and the one thing that proves him the best is that he has defended championship of the world is that Freddie Welsh refused to box with him.

"Britton, through his manager, has been getting the best of the match and the fight talk for the last few days, but I am sure Lewis will be the one to do the boxing when the time comes. Lewis is willing to box Britton at 135 pounds, but Britton must come down to the scales and weigh in at that figure or forfeit the money he has posted for the match. Lewis is willing to box Britton at 138 pounds, but Britton did not complain and won the fight, as everybody knows. I can truthfully say that Lewis is in the best of condition and will be able to go ten rounds with Britton at the finish of the fight. Lewis' one ambition is to knock Britton out."

CHARLEY DESHLER, Walter Butler's manager, has matched the Beverly lightweight for a ten-round scrap with Eddie Flynn at Chicopee next Monday night. Deshler is getting down to weight and wants to box with Marty Baldwin. He's also chasing Frankie Mack.

Ritchie to Meet Dundee.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Willie Ritchie and Joe Dundee have been matched to box at Madison Square Garden on October 9. Ritchie is the ex-lightweight champion being guaranteed $15,000 by Dundee. Ritchie fought with Joe Shugrue, scheduled for October 4, has been posponed until October 25.

Two Scraps for Joe Chick.

Joe Chick, the Gloucester welterweight, has just booked two dates. October 4 he meets Beau Jack of Fall River at New Bedford, and October 12 goes on with "Wild Bill" Fleming at Lawrence's first boxing show in several moons.

RING RESULTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Walter Nelson, scheduled to fight "Kid" Sullivan against "Knockout" Brown, in the Bronx tonight, was matched as substitute for the West Side bantam. "Knockout" Brown Daly stabbed James Smith in the semi-final.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Jimmy Carroll and Willie Jackson, Boston featherweights, interesting Gotham fight fans all summer, will clash in a 10-round bout at the Commodore A. C. Jimmy Clinton stopped Jimmy Gray in the second round and Danny Davis made Jack Lewis quit in the fifth.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—Eddie O'Keefe, the Philadelphia bantam, knocked out Eddie Hogan of New Bedford in a rapid six-round bout at the Olympic A. C.

CHICOPEE, Sept. 25.—Andy Cotton of New York was awarded the decision over Kid Lee in the twelve-round windup at the New Atlas A. C. Cotton fairly earned the verdict.

Lenore Asks to Go and Peter Has a Stab at the Heart, Much to Connie's Surprise

CHAPTER XVI.

"I ALWAYS did think the strength of affection consists more in liking the same things than in liking each other," said a wise old writer. That quotation came home to me more and more strongly each day when I saw the absolute congeniality that their community of interests brought between Lenore and Peter.

She was a nurse, all enthusiasm for her profession—he a doctor, all ambition for his. For every problem that beset Peter, Lenore had intelligent sympathy and interest. Medicine to me had always been a closed book of repulsive pages which I did not care to finger. I had thought that Peter, who lived all day with problems of sickness and of morbidness, would be glad to drop them in his home life.

And yet he seemed to find the most tremendous stimulation in discussing his problems with Lenore. They tried to include me, but on the one hand I was frankly bored and on the other I have always hated playing the part of a duffer. Since I could not talk intelligently I preferred not to talk at all.

"Connie, one of the best things you ever did was hauling that little Lenore Wallis out of the slums and giving her a chance in the world," said Peter one morning at the breakfast table, when Lenore had left us to go and answer to a summons from little Dorothy, who wanted her "Nora."

HIS LACK OF FAITH

"And yet you haven't any faith in her, and thought I was wasting myself dreadfully and would never get any gratitude for it," I said.

There is hardly anything more stupid a wife can do than to "remind her husband that his judgment in regard to a certain situation has been at fault and hers has been justified. All men hate to hear a woman say "I told you so," but even more mightily do they loathe hearing her say, "You were quite sure this wouldn't work, and now see how splendidly it has come out."

Man likes to suppose himself the guide and leader and noble preceptor of the woman he loves. I suppose that goes back to the prehistoric creature whose strength enabled him to protect his mate. When modern life denies a man a chance to fight for his woman, he likes at least to sit back in his all wisdom and advise her.

Peter was too much of a gentleman to fling down his napkin in a crumpled mass and fly from the room when I taunted him with the superiority of my judgment in regard to Lenore. But he managed to hurt me almost as much as if he had by scowling angrily for a moment and then throwing back his head and laughing the wonderful deep-toned laugh that always set my heart-strings vibrating.

"You were a wonderful guesser, Connie. Your flower of the slums has a real gift for nursing. But did you ever dream what a little winner she'd be? I'll wager not. When one woman does a lot for another, she seldom picks out a beauty for her Lady Bountiful act."

When a man laughs as he makes a statement like that, to argue about it sets you down as one who lacks that gift of the gods—"a sense of humor."

Life flowed along smoothly for a few weeks. Peterkin's convalescence progressed splendidly under his father's superintendence, and Lenore's ministrations. Even delicate little Dorothy seemed to cling to her new nurse and to improve under her care.

PETER GROWS WORRIED

Peter, however, looked more and more worried from day to day and seemed hardly ever to be cheerful except when he was discussing his problems with Lenore. Strangely enough, it did not occur to me to be jealous of my little protege. I took it for granted that Peter's congeniality with her was purely mental.

Lenore did her work splendidly, but she got into the habit of following me around the house wistfully and assuring me again and again that she would never forget how much she owed to me.

"Methinks the lady doth protest too much," I said one day laughingly. Lenore's wonderful blue eyes flooded with tears and their pansy softness startled even me as their beauty flashed on my consciousness.

"Oh, Mrs. Drayton—I do mean it! I want you always to remember it. I'm grateful, grateful to you—and I'd be willing to die to show it—I wouldn't ever do you any harm in the world, I—I—Oh, life is so hard"—and efficient little Lenore fled wildly from the room.

For several weeks Peter had been greatly worried over the case of Marion Farley. His cousin's sister had taken her unhappy marriage and divorce from Harvey Blake very tragically. She had sought forgetfulness and temporary relief from her woes in drink. At first she had taken merely a few cocktails or an occasional highball in public.

Then she had taken so many drinks that people had begun to discuss her, and now, at last, she had withdrawn from a critical and censorious world and had become that tragic and dangerous thing, "a secret drinker."

TRYING TO SAVE MARION

Peter was giving his most earnest efforts to saving Jim Farley's sister. In my pity for the once beautiful woman who was wrecking her loveliness and her life I was not jealous of Peter's efforts in Marion's behalf, but I could not help her with much personal sympathy. To me she was a woman I had never liked—not a case.

Lenore had shown the greatest interest in the case of Marian Farley, and on the very evening after her declaration of loyalty to me and the strange breakdown that followed it she came to us with a suggestion.

"Doctor Drayton, I want to do something that I hope you and your wife will approve—I want to leave here"— Almost in unison Peter and I began to protest, but pansy-faced Lenore went on with swift firmness. "Little Peterkin is all right now, and Dorothy's getting much too dependent on me—it isn't fair to her mother."

"You won't take her mother's love, Lenore. She'll come back to me. Real love is loyal. It always—goes home to roost." I said lightly.

Lenore looked at me almost sadly and shook her head. Peter was silent, intently watching Lenore.

"No, I can't do any good if I stay and I might be able to by going."

Something in that strange little sentence caught my attention. And with sharpened senses I heard Peter's reply:

"I'll miss you, little Lenore—I'll miss you. But perhaps it will be better for you to go. I'll arrange with Marion tomorrow. Only don't make Jim Farley fall in love with you."

The Tragedy of Loneliness

Both Girls and Men Must Meet in Conventional Ways to Insure Respectful Friendship

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-five, good-looking, nice appearance, athletic build, good dresser, fairly educated—am not so very well acquainted here. I have lots of opportunities to flirt, but I lack the nerve to be too forward, although I am not bashful in the way.

I crave an acquaintance, someone in this big city, and I certainly would like to make the acquaintance of some nice young ladies—but don't know how.

LONESOME.

IN response to this letter I have received not less than a hundred letters from girls who are lonely, too.

My sympathy is great for each of the lonely individuals who seeks congenial companionship and who is sufficiently attracted by a printed letter to ask for advice. I know that in every large city there are dozens of girls and men who want to know pleasant young folk of the opposite sex and who jump at every straw that offers them an opportunity. And it is one of the tragedies of life in a city that this grasping at straws won't do.

Friendships between men and women, if they are to flourish and count for anything worth while in life, must be based on mutual faith and trust. Mutual faith and trust do not come through meeting people irregularly. Suspicion is one of the tragic characteristics of human nature. And when men and girls meet without the formality of proper introduction of responsible individuals who more or less vouch for them to each other, they are all too likely to wonder and doubt.

Loneliness is a bitter tragedy—and the most tragic thing about it is that one who wants to help cannot do so and that each of you must work out your problem for yourself. Girls and men must meet each other according to the laws of society. Otherwise they are all to likely to have this suspicion.

"Well, if she met me through a flirtation, probably she meets other men that way. I prefer a girl to be a girl that demands that highest respect"; or, "Since she got acquainted with me without an introduction, I guess he meets a lot of girls that way and I guess he's a fellow who hasn't much else to do and who doesn't think any too highly of women either."

Lives in a big city are sadly circumscribed. Getting into a circle of congenial friends, meeting an individual to whom one can talk freely and with whom one can be one's absolute self, are not easy things to do. Church, social clubs and friends of one's own sex offer the most natural way of making acquaintances. But the opportunity does not pay to take desperate chances or to gamble on the attractive appearance of a stranger in order to end loneliness.

Loneliness does not stop because you know people. "I am never so lonely as when I am with other people" is bitterly true when those other people are not congenial and of your own sort.

The one great consolation about the tragedy of loneliness is that it is in no way final. It may always be overcome. Perhaps tomorrow the sad little girl who goes from her hall bedroom to work and comes drearily back to her hall bedroom from work may quite simply and naturally meet someone through the knowing of whom her whole life's course may be changed.

A girl I know went obligingly to look for an apartment for a relative who was coming to her town. With her was a girl friend, who waited in the lobby for her. When the home-hunter came back from her unrewarded search she found her girl deep in conversation with a man who happened to live in that building.

Though he was a family connection of this girl's, they took no interest in one another and never saw anything of one another. The girl who chanced to be introduced to him came to be a very good friend of his, and through him she became a member of a thoroughly congenial circle of charming men and women. To any lonely girl just such a pleasant experience may come any day.

Who of us knows what waits "just around the corner"? Who of us wants to risk because of unpleasant present conditions the chance fully to enjoy happy experiences when they do come? Loneliness must never tempt us into indiscretion or danger. Life has to be lived according to its rules, and friendships must come naturally, honestly and with dignified beginnings.

"I Know a GIRL There!"

No. 3 Montreal

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service

"OH, I do know a girl there. A Canadian-American girl—a gay, graceful creature—and I wish I could see her now. The girl of the snow and the sleighbells, with the cheeks as hard and scarlet as apples, with the brilliant, liquid eyes of a French father and his black hair with the coppery lights. Seems to me now, when I think, that always she was laughing—with a glimmer of fine white teeth and a tightening of the soft, red lips, and a deepening of the dimple in her slanting cheek. White and black and red she was. Like Snow White in the Glen with the Seven Little Men. The red of the scarlet night skies, the white of the snow that froths around her skis and powders in a glitter her furs and toque. Last I saw her she stopped in a laughing trek up a steep slope deep in snow, her moccasins layered in white, her winged toboggan on her back, snow diamonds on her lashes, a drift of snowflakes dimming her glory of black and scarlet, one cold little hand bare, the scarlet of her trappings of sweater and mittens matching the blood in her cheeks, the black of her furs the hair that sprayed across her face; and, standing under the black and silver birch and a snow-blanketed fir, she waved a debonair good-by.

Snow-white and rose-red and still-water black. The Montreal girl.

How Much Do You Save?

Hundreds of thousands of married men and women and hundreds of thousands of unmarried fail to save a portion of their incomes.

Hundreds of thousands of others put away a certain sum each week or month.

The Boston American invites its readers to give their experiences in saving for publication on this page.

These experiences, besides being of interest as human documents, will be a help and an inspiration to those who have not cultivated the habit of thrift.

PERHAPS this seems a weary
A day so slow to end
You wonder whether sunshine's away
Has now forever passed away,
And lost is every friend.

Impatient! Lo this weary day
Is in life's lengthening chain
A link to hold in silvered gray
The glories that have passed away,
Fast bound to joy that comes again.

SOME WOMEN

Have a gift beyond the reach of art—that of being eloquently silent.

Find life full of golden opportunities for doing what they do not want to do.

Climb wearily to the summit of life and success and find their lonely position on the penceful mountain tops wearier than the climb.

Are wise enough to know that the best way to keep a man's friendship is by seldom using it.

Never make the colossal mistake of imagining they know themselves.

Have found the answer to most of life's problems. It is written in four letters—"w-a-i-t."

Are diplomats, but diplomacy comes from the head, and a really feminine woman seldom is more than merely tactful, since tact comes from the heart.

Never grasp the reason for failure—"It is not enough to aim—you must hit," as the Italian proverb says.

Are as true as their straight hair and freckles, others no more genuine than their marcel waves and ruby lips—and you can fool most of the men most of the time.

Call any man a "sceptic" or "cynic" if he fails to share the good opinion they have of themselves.

Feel that they don't know how to take a man, even before he offers himself.

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

Some girls are so fond of being waited on that they will stand by a revolving door until some man comes and gives it the necessary impetus.

* * *

When a girl with wistful blue eyes tells a man she is afraid of him he'd better be afraid of himself.

* * *

When an idle rumor gains currency make sure that it was not idle in tarrying by the wayside.

* * *

The man who takes a woman's advice is either a fool who won't profit by it or a strong man who does not need it.

* * *

Oh, Love may laugh at locksmiths—
So goes the ancient rumor—
But it takes itself too seriously
To have a sense of humor.

Why We Quarreled--The Man's Side

No. 8—The Husband Who Tried to Regulate His Wife's Wardrobe Tells of His Defeat

Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

WHEN we were young married people my income was small, and it was remarkable to see how well my wife dressed on it. She is deft with her fingers, and she fashioned many of her own clothes.

Then, suddenly, I made a good sum of money and my father died and left me still more. This enabled us to alter our mode of life, and go into a more fashionable set of society. I was glad, for I like society.

But I had no idea that the change in our fortunes was going to make such a change in my wife's apparel. I understood, of course, that the material of her costumes might now be handsomer than of old, but it beats me to understand why she need have several gowns to take the place of every one that she used to have. And nowadays she "makes over" nothing.

"Why should I?" she argues. "I can't sew nearly as well as the professional dressmakers do, and, besides they need the very work that I used to do myself."

"That's very true," I agreed, "and I am not objecting to your giving work to trained dressmakers or nearly sewing women. But why have so many gowns for one season?"

"Because," she replied, "I go to more functions than I once did."

"But," I insisted, "even then you do not wear out an evening gown in one season. It may get soiled, but you can have it cleaned. As you do not dance, it certainly does not become worn or shabby."

"You seem to forget," Elizabeth said, "that it makes a woman uncomfortable to wear the same costume in the same crowd again and again."

Then she sighed in sheer despair of making me understand.

A BUSY SHOPPING SEASON

That was last Fall. I had never seen her more engrossed in anything than she was in shopping and dressmaking all through the late Autumn and early Winter. I determined to keep count of her new clothes. One day when she was out I came home early and went through her closet. I knew which were the evening gowns, for they hung in light bags. Each bag had attached to it a smaller one which held the slippers to match the gown.

I counted five evening dresses, three suits, three afternoon dreams and three fluffy things that looked like wrappers—only more elaborate. I think they were what my wife calls negligees. There were also several wraps, besides her long fur coat. I made a list of them all and handed it to my wife when she came in.

"Well, what of it!" she demanded, as I looked my disapproval. "We go out so much that I must have evening gowns a-plenty. As to the afternoon gowns, I wear them to teas in my own home and elsewhere. Then the suits I need for church, calling or shopping. I could not wear a plain serge suit to call in, could I? I tell you," she added defiantly, as I made no reply, "when a woman is young she may look all right in plain things, but when she is nearing middle life she must dress handsomely or be a perfect frump."

"I'd risk it," I muttered.

"What did you say?" she asked.

I repeated my remark, adding—perhaps brutally—that I would rather have my wife resemble a sober little domestic bird than a vain and strutting peacock.

I knew my words made Elizabeth very angry, and she looked at me strangely for a full minute before she spoke. 'I wondered what she was thinking.

"Do you mean that?" she asked at last.

"I do!" I returned savagely. "I would rather have you as plain as a nun than putting all my money into peacock-like gaudiness."

This was not true—for I have enough money and to spare—but I was indignant and bitter. An hour later I had forgotten the remark. My wife had not.

A DOUBTFUL SURPRISE

Two nights later Elizabeth and I went to a fashionable reception given by the wife of a wealthy business associate of mine. In the automobile my wife's fur coat hid her gown completely.

I could not repress a start of amazement when, as I waited for her at the head of the stairs outside of the men's dressing room, she appeared in a plainly made black silk, one that had been a second-best afternoon gown last year. The sleeves came to the elbows and she wore long black gloves. The waist was open a little at the throat, and this space was filled with white lace.

"Elizabeth!" I exclaimed, actually shocked, "why, in the name of Heaven, have you worn that dress for such a function as this? You know I always want you to look your best in this house."

She smiled limpidly. "You told me you would rather see me dressed like a nun than like a peacock," she reminded me. "So as all my evening gowns are rather gorgeous, I had to wear this to meet your views."

I was almost besides myself with rage. Other couples, passing us in the hall, looked at my wife in surprise.

"We'll go home!" I told her in an angry whisper.

"Very well," she agreed, calmly.

We went home, and when we were once in our own house I turned on her authoritatively.

"Now go and dress suitably!" I ordered. "Then we will go back to that reception."

"Oh, no, we won't," she said. "You may go if you like—but you'll go alone. I am not going to obey another of your whims. I dressed tonight to please you, but I shall not repeat the process just because you have changed your mind. But remember, after this I mean to dress to suit myself—since I cannot suit you."

That was all. From that time to this I have never interfered in what is, presumably, my wife's own peculiar province.

And when her friends declare in her presence and mine that she is the best-gowned woman in our set, I do not glance in her direction lest I see a gleam of malicious triumph in her eyes.

Lucky Thing There Was a Cave Handy When the Tornado Came Along

THE EX-WILD MAN'S STORY

This is the story the ex-Wild Man said he got from his black friend: "Long ago there lived a savage chief far away to the East. This chief had a beautiful wife. He was very jealous of her. Any one of his subjects who as much as looked at her was put on a ship, taken to the island and placed in the cave which the old chief had fixed up with the tunnel and slide connecting with the gravel pit. They all went down into the pit sooner or later, but never came out. One fine day something funny happened. The chief's wife looked upon Luulie, the most handsome man in the chief's domain. She fell in love with him. The chief heard of it and put poor Luulie away on the island. The wife followed secretly and entered the cave after Luulie. Down she went into the pit. When the chief found where she was he had steps of stone constructed down to her. When he reached her he choked her to death, marked the spot where the steps were, had them covered with gravel again, declared a holiday and went home again about his business." As the ex-Wild Man finished this yarn he and his three friends had reached the top of the flight of steps. They had worked all night uncovering them. Entering a tunnel they found a pathway to the right of the slide leading into the cave, and they also found a large supply of torches, one of which the ex-Wild Man lit. You know the rest. That's all.

ANSWER MONDAY

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened strong in New York, with railroads the most active group, the upward movement of yesterday afternoon being continued. Motor car issues were inactive at the start. There was less business than usual in war order stocks. Coppers as a class were neglected. Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio and American Smelting opened at their highest prices for the year to date. Trade reports say the country's business is expanding. Lower temperature has helped many branches of commerce. Railroads are preparing to order more equipment. Orders for 10,000 cars are pending.

It is stated that a syndicate of American bankers to underwrite the foreign loan may be formed within a few days, that credits will not exceed $500,000,000 and that British-French representatives will ask their governments to approve of the plan to be agreed upon. As to what the American bankers propose, their offer is summarized as follows: "One half billion dollars for five years at 5 per cent. on joint bonds of the two countries (France and Great Britain), payments to be made at such times as will stabilize foreign exchange by the purchase of bills in the open market."

When John D. Rockefeller arrived at his Tarrytown home and was asked how he stood as to the foreign loan, he would make no reply. According to a New York banker, since the war began this country has absorbed stocks and bonds totalling about $1,000,000,000 and liquidated by foreigners. This is about one-fifth of the maximum estimate as to foreign holdings made about a year ago. It is believed this liquidation is about over. This may account for the rise in railroad stocks.

RAILROADS LED THE LIST.

At 10:15 in New York gains included Atchison ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio 1, Canadian Pacific 1⅜, Chesapeake & Ohio ½, N. Y. Central 1, Northern Pacific 1⅜, Pennsylvania 1¾, Reading ⅝, Southern Pacific ⅝, St. Paul ⅛, Union Pacific ⅝, Rock Island ½, U. S. Steel ⅛, Utah Copper ¼, Anaconda ¼, American Sugar ½, American Smelting ¼, American Can ⅝, Allis-Chalmers ⅛, Baldwin ⅞, Colorado Fuel ⅛, General Motors 6, Mexican Petroleum ⅛, Republic Steel ⅝ and Tennessee Copper ⅛.

Among declines were Lehigh Valley ¼, American Locomotive ⅛, General Electric ⅛, Maxwell ⅛, N. Y. Air Brake 1½, Studebaker 1⅜ and Westinghouse ⅞.

At the end of half an hour profit taking had sent U. S. Steel off ⅛. Southern Pacific was up 1¼, Northern Pacific 1⅞, Westinghouse had recovered part of its loss and the list as a whole was ranging higher.

BOSTON MARKET MORE ACTIVE.

Early trading was of more volume in Boston yesterday, but the local market soon became as dull as usual. A number of important issues showed no price change. Among gains were Boston & Maine ½, Tamarack ⅞ and Wolverine ½. Alaska Gold was off ¼. American Woolen preferred ¼ and Butte & Superior ⅝.

Foreign inquiries for a large amount of copper have been received by producers. Considerable business is being done with Europe. Exports sales are at 18⅝ cents a pound, it is stated. Sellers are holding firm for 18 cents on domestic transactions. There is increased demand for spelter. Lead is firm.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE;
OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1915

The Prayer We Offered Up for Peace Is Amended Now by the Money Lenders

IN a signed statement printed in the New Orleans Item, Mr. Hearst said:

"That is the material side of this question; and there is a moral side as well, which must be considered, for the American people are a moral people. They are a righteous and religious people, they are a God-fearing, peace-loving people. Our people hope and pray for peace for ourselves and for the stricken nations of Europe. We abhor war and we have condemned this particular war as the worst and most wicked of all wars.

"We have sorrowed for the soldiers of our own Caucasian race slain by the thousands, yes by millions, upon the field of battle. We have grieved for wretched wives made widows, and for helpless orphans thrown upon a world made brutal and barren by war. We have bemoaned the accumulated wealth of ages ruthlessly destroyed, the treasures of art and architecture recklessly demolished, the very foundations of Occidental civilization and religion weakened, if not wrecked, by the fury and frenzy of this fratricidal conflict.

"We have gone into our churches, or into the sanctuaries of our homes, and prayed to God to restore peace on earth and revive good will among men.

"We have besought God to preserve our race, to protect our civilization, to conserve the wealth and the treasures of the world for the world, to end this needless, endless sorrow and slaughter, desolation and destruction.

"And God has heard our prayer. He has created a situation which is a supreme test of our sincerity. He has made it come to pass that this war cannot continue unless we who have prayed for peace shall supply the arms and money to protract the war."

It should not be forgotten that the prayers to which Mr. Hearst referred in these words were public prayers offered up in solemn assemblages convoked by the President of the United States. Thus they took on a double significance, being at once the prayers of individual hearts and the prayers of the great heart of the nation itself.

In those solemn assemblies there was used no set form of petition, but, in spirit at least, we all prayed after this fashion:

"O God, Creator of the Worlds and Father of Mankind, we beseech Thee that Thou wilt, in Thy mercy and compassion, move the hearts of men to cease from war and to begin again to live in amity and concord, sowing and garnering the fruits of the earth, exchanging with one another the products of industry, and living to Thy glory and to their own happiness.

"We pray Thee that peace may come to our brothers and sisters who are suffering and dying across the seas; that men may no longer be butchered; that women no longer may weep above their ruined homes and their dead; that little children, just like our own dear little boys and girls, may not be made fatherless and motherless and homeless; that the sweet earth may no longer be made horrid and putrid with the bones and carrion of what were strong, useful men, Thy children, doing their tasks in the world which Thou didst make to be a world of useful work and peaceful happiness.

"Almighty and Compassionate God and Father of us all, have mercy upon Thy world and move the hearts of the rulers of men quickly to bring peace to the sorrowful and suffering peoples."

Such, as we say, was the spirit, if not the form, of all the prayers that went up from American hearts on that day of unselfish compassion.

But it seems that such a prayer no longer expresses the sentiments of some few sordid Americans. They have learned that the waste of war in other lands spells gain to them at home. And so, in spirit if not in form, they have modified and qualified their anxious petitions to God to bring peace again to Europe.

Would not the remainder of us loyal and religious Americans be deeply and rightfully shocked and ashamed if we could hear the real sentiments of these selfish and sordid Americans translated into formal prayer after this fashion:

"But while we thus beseech Thee, Heavenly Father, to have compassion upon mankind and to give the world peace, we also humbly ask Thee not to be too precipitately in haste.

"Graciously permit us, Our Heavenly Father, to remind Thee that many of Thy richest and most self-righteous servants who honor Thy name and enrich Thy altars and Thy shepherds desire yet a few months of war until they have garnered the profits of their war loans and made sure of the payment of their ammunition bills.

"Lord, we do most earnestly desire peace, but not until Thy servants in Wall Street have finished their dealings and have balanced their books.

"O Thou Compassionate and Merciful One, who art called the Prince of Peace, we beseech Thee to intercede with the Father Almighty that the woe and waste of this saddened world may cease, as soon as Thy servants, the bankers, have got the money.

"Lord, we would beg Thee to speak peace to mankind at once, but there is a chance to loan a thousand millions at much profit, if Thy mercy and compassion can find it convenient to wait a few months, and, Lord, thou knowest we need the money.

"Heavenly Father, we are indeed sorry for Thy children in Europe who are being so cruelly mangled, so horribly slain, and it is our heartfelt prayer that Thou wilt put an end to their awful sufferings as soon, Lord, as it seems good to Thee after we have collected the balance of the cash that is coming our way in such bounteous stream.

"Bless, Lord, Thy servants in public office, who have been granted wisdom to see these things aright; Thy servants in Washington, who have mightily wrestled with Thee in prayer for peace without permitting any hindrance to the business of Thy servants who manufacture the weapons of war.

"Lord, we bless Thee for the most excellent manner in which these, Thy servants in Washington, have combined business with piety.

"Lord, continue to bless us, and in Thine own good time give peace to the suffering nations. But, Lord, Thou knowest that business is business, and we ask Thee to magnify Thy holy name by not interfering too soon."

Doesn't this suppositious prayer sound infinitely and infamously blasphemous?

WELL, THEN, HOW MUCH MORE BLASPHEMOUS IS THE HYPOCRISY WHICH PRAYS THUS, NOT IN WORDS, BUT IN DAILY DEEDS—WHICH ALONE ARE TRUE PRAYER?

For how shall God judge of the secret desire and prayer of a man's heart save by the things he does from the inclination of his heart?

And what do men do who run about to provide money and weapons with which to prolong this awful war if they do not show by their deeds that in their hearts they pray that the war may be prolonged?

All the arguments used to defend and to excuse the trafficking of the bankers who would extend this loan to the homicidal maniacs in Europe, and of such concerns as the steel mills at Bethlehem and the ammunition factories at Wilmington and elsewhere, can be boiled down to two words:

IT PAYS!

Stripped of pharisaism and hypocrisy, the argument for this devil's work is simply that there is money in it.

The dreadful agonies and awful deaths of millions of men, human beings just like ourselves, who are mangled and torn by shot and shell, stabbed with bayonets, pounded to bloody and abhorrent pulp under the wheels of rushing motors or the hoofs of trampling horses; the misery and despair of millions of widowed women and orphaned children; the horror, the hideous savagery, the awful, incredible waste and rapine and murder which are making of civilized Europe a charnel house filled with human bones and human carrion, heaps upon heaps—nothing of all this woe and horror seems to appeal to these apologists for the aiders and abettors of war's continuance.

There is profit in making loans; there is gain in selling weapons of murder. On with the dance of Death and Hell!

People of America, we stand before the bar of God's justice, and we shall yet stand before the bar of human history, accused of selling our proclaimed virtues for the wickedest money there is—for the price of innocent blood.

And as surely as the justice of God exists, so surely shall we be found guilty before the bar of history and before the throne of Heaven if we continue to take this wicked money, this infamous price of innocent blood, this Judas bribe.

It is not possible for a nation, any more than it is possible for an individual, to sell its honor, its virtue, its compassion and its nobler sentiments for the price of blood and continue to prosper under the approving smile of God.

For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

And what shall it profit a people if they possess billions of gold and lose the nation's soul and the nation's virtue, and the nation's bright place in the ranks of the just and righteous?

Make no mistake about these venders of loans and arms or about men who prostitute their brains and their journals to defend the infamous traffic.

They are traffickers in human agonies and human lives, traders in human misery and human despair, sellers of innocent blood, murderers of men and torturers of women and children, and wicked and heartless and infamous purveyors to the lords of hell.

Against this wickedness we make protest in the name of civilization and our common humanity.

Over against the profits of money lenders and ammunition makers we set, in dreadful array, the pale and mutilated corpses of Europe's millions of slain; the tear-stained faces of Europe's millions of widows and orphans; the desolation of Europe's homes; the waste of Europe's fields; the ashes and ruins of Europe's civilization, and we ask you, citizens of America, if this nation of God-fearing folk can afford to purchase the profits of money lenders and weapon makers at such a cost of human woe, at such an expense of duty, conscience, honor and humanity?
